DRIVE TO GET ALLIED DEBT IS PUSHED

America Not To Let Up On Insistence That Money Be Paid, Claim

BULLETIN

ROME, May 18.—Both Great Britain and the United States should balance their war accounts in Italy's favor, according to President of the Senate Tittoni.

In a speech on the debts today Tittoni said that both creditor nations had made profits on the sale of war materials to Italy "and should reduce Italy's war debts" to them accordingly.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The latest vigorous efforts of the United States to collect the $7,000,000,000 owed by foreign nations on account of war loans marks no deviation from the government's fixed policy for the liquidation of these debts, it was declared officially here today.

This explanation was made in view of the reports that the American debt collecting drive was the first step toward some kind of international debts conference for the purpose of wiping out all inter-allied debts through a checking up process.

Pointing out that any move of that kind would be a complete reversal of the determination of the government to deal with each of its debtors separately and to demand payment in full, officials said that President Coolidge and the American debt funding commission were merely trying to speed up debt settlements under the authority of the foreign debt act, and in no other manner.

There is no doubt in the minds of administration officialss, however, that the effort of the United States to put all its outstanding debts on a funded basis will have the effect of causing a general movement throughout the world for the settlement of the billions of dollars of indebtedness growing out of and chargeable to the World War.

It was pointed out that many of the principal debtors of the United States, including France and Italy, owe equally large sums to Great Britain and that an extraordinary effort by the American government to secure payments is bound to cause the British government to seek satisfactory arrangements with its debtors at the same time.

The British position is that France, or any other government owing the United States, should

New College Buildings Assured By Governor

SACRAMENTO, May 18.—Submission to the voters at the next general election of an $8,500,000 bond issue to cover construction of new state and university buildings was assured today as the result of Governor Richardson's action in signing Senate bill No. 484.

The bill provides $3,000,000 for new buildings on the new site of the southern branch of the University of California, near Los Angeles; $3,000,000 for buildings and improvements at the main university in Berkeley; $1,250,000 for a state building in Los Angeles, and $1,250,000 for the completion of Capitol annex buildings here.

England Asks For Payment Of War Debt

LONDON, May 18.—England will press for allied debt settlements, but will not set a time limit for its creditors, Premier Stanley Baldwin told the House of Commons today.

"I think there is no advantage to be gained by setting a time limit for France and other allied debtors to pay their obligations to Great Britain," he said. "But I assure you every opportunity will be taken to press for settlement of the question."

The British treasury has adopted for the time being, at least, a waiting policy with regard to debts. The prevailing opinion among treasury experts is that collections are impossible at this time from most of the European debtors. For instance, with this view in mind, British officials are marking time and watching with keen interest the result of American initiative.

LEAGUE DROPS CENTRALIZED ARMS PLAN

America's Refusal to O. K. Plan Moves Conference To Abandon Scheme

GENEVA, May 18.—The United States' refusal to co-operate with a League of Nations bureau resulted in abandonment today of the proposed central bureau for arms traffic control.

The special committee of the arms conference created to find some compromise suitable to Congressman Theodore Burton, of Ohio, head of the American delegation, decided to alter completely the arms traffic control plan, eliminating the projected central bureau. Its members would have been appointed by the league council.

The sub-committee's solution which meets the approval of Burton and delegates of league member nations provides that each nation signing the arms control agreement will periodically publish uniform statistics of its arms exports and imports, making these figures available to all other nations.

MINISTER AND W. J. BRYAN IN CLASH

Church Without Creed Does Not Stand For Anything, Asserts Commoner

NEW YORK, May 18.—"No teacher should be permitted to teach that the Bible is a lie."

With this sharp retort to questioners, William Jennings Bryan brought his war on the modernists and the evolutionists into New York today. He delivered a speech before an audience of ministers in Brooklyn and submitted to a heckling that was reminiscent of the heckling he underwent on his last appearance in the metropolis—at Madison Square Garden a year ago.

Attacking the modernists, the commoner said:

"When we see these people trying to cast Christ down from his seat beside God and then trying to cast man down to the level of beasts, I can do nothing but fight for my religion. God give me the power to protect those whose souls will be endangered by these doctrines."

Bryan was interrupted by a Congregationalist layman.

"Do you believe in the divinit of Christ?" snapped the commoner.

His questioner replied that he did not.

"What is the creed of your church?" he asked.

The heckler replied that his church had no creed.

"Well, a church without a creed does not stand for anything," retorted Bryan.

"If the modernists," he went on, "can give us a greater Lord than the one they are trying to take away from us, we will be as glad as was Mary Magdalene.

"There is nothing strange about the birth of Christ, nothing stranger than the birth of man. God brought man to earth, why couldn't He, then, bring Christ?

"The modernists do not believe in miracles. But take miracles out of the Bible and there will be nothing in it. It will be nothing but a man-made book."

Referring directly to the evolution fight in Tennessee, where a young professor has been indicted for teaching that man descended from lower forms of life, the commoner scored newspapers for exploiting the case.

"When the governor signed the bill creating that law," he complained, "the newspapers printed a paragraph about it. When the law is ridiculed, they scream it in headlines.

"Taxpayers should rule the schools. There are only 110,000 scientists in the country, and yet they wish to control the teaching of millions."

Purchase of Ships Is Left Up to Ford

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Until Henry Ford makes a formal offer for the purchase of surplus ships from the government, no further steps will be taken by the shipping board to dispose of the 400 vessels which Chairman O'Connor wants to sell, it was announced today.

Pending advices from Ford, O'Connor said the board would mark time in its effort to sell the ships, either for scrapping or private operation. In the meantime, the chairman is seeking to eliminate the opposition among other members of the board to his plan for placing surplus ships on the open market.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Chairman T. C. O'Connor of the United States Shipping board today went into a series of conferences with other members of the board on the subject of disposition of surplus government ships.

O'Connor returned Sunday from Detroit, where he discussed the government's shipping problem with Henry Ford and prevailed upon the automobile manufacturer to put in a bid for at least 400 ships, most of which would have been scrapped by the purchasers.

Commissioner Thompson is opposing the sale of the ships to private interests on the ground that the maintenance of the vessels is not certain, nor that they could be used by the government at some future time when under control of private parties.

SHOCK TROOPS PREPARE NEW RUM FIGHT

Surprise Attack Planned On Undisclosed Sector Of Liquor Activity

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Another surprise attack on an undisclosed sector of the American coast line where liquor smugglers are getting thousands of cases into this country, was being planned by tactical experts of the day.

The mobile section of the anti-liquor fleet will be withdrawn from the New York sector and concentrated on another area.

The "shock troops" will attempt to do on the new "front" what was accomplished off New York, in a quick, crushing assault. The government plans a series of clean-up actions on the Atlantic, Pacific and Hawaiian coasts. The concentration of vessels will be governed by the seriousness of the smuggling situation.

Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the coast guard, is arranging a detail of destroyers, patrol boats and other craft to guard the area from Boston to New York after the main body of the fleet has been withdrawn for the new offensive.

Florida Watched

An inspection of the New York front disclosed that this section can be held by a comparatively small group of speedy vessels. As each "front" is cleaned up, the coast guard will leave a sufficient force of men and boats to "keep it clean" officials disclosed.

One of the most serious smuggling situations exists on the Florida coast, Palm beach as well as Miami and other resorts are centers for a big imported liquor market. The bootleggers have already started filling their warehouses for next winter millionaire trade.

Did William Shepherd (at top) study typhoid infection in a laboratory as a step toward gaining possession of the fortune of his fosterson, William McClintock, "orphan millionaire"? Chicago authorities are attempting to prove that he did, and are counting upon the testimony of John P. Marchand (left) and Dr. Charles C. Faiman (right) to have weight with a murder trial jury. McClintock died of typhoid fever. The authorities learned from Marchand and Faiman that Shepherd was a bacteriological student at the National University of Science, Chicago; and that tubes of typhoid germs disappeared while he was there.

These photos portray the latest moves in the effort to prove Dr. William D. Shepherd, guardian of "Billy" McClintock, Chicago's "boy millionaire," guilty of the boy's death through the administration of typhoid germs. Upper photo shows Judge Harry Olson watching the exhumation of the body of Dr. Oscar Olson, his brother, whom he believes may have died from similar causes. Other photos show Earl P. Clark, who says he was offered $5000 to leave Chicago before the trial is begun, and Mrs. Luella Rheubell, former manager of Dr. C. C. Faiman's "University of Sciences," talking to Attorney J. J. McCarthy. She says that she has proof that Dr. Faiman "lied" when he said he negotiated with Shepherd to supply typhoid germs.

Isabelle Pope To Testify In Typhoid Case

CHICAGO, May 18.—Ready to testify, if necessary, "in the cause of justice," Miss Isabelle Pope, who, had "Billy" McClintock lived, today would be honeymooning in Europe, stepped off a train from Portland, Ore., today, into the arms of an excited family.

A solid phalanx of father, brother, aunt, sister and brother-in-law shielded the girl who probably will be one of the state's star witnesses against William D. Shepherd, from the group of newspaper men waiting to interview her, and rushed her into a motor car which sped off to Wilmette—and mother.

"I'm ready," was all Miss Pope had to say regarding the trial.

WIFE GREETS SHEPHERD IN KISS

Mate Of Suspect In Death Of McClintock Clings To Him At Trial

By SONIA LEE
For International News Service

CRIMINAL COURT BUILDING, CHICAGO, May 18—A man waves and a woman pushes through a crowd, leans over and kisses man. Such is the greeting of Julie Shepherd and her "darl," the man who today entered upon his trial for the "typhoid" death of "Billy" McClintock, millionaire orphan and ward of Shepherd.

Strangely, there is a smile on the lips of Mrs. Shepherd. It finds answer upon those of her husband, who, within a two months' space has become white haired, prison pallored and restrained.

The clerk calls the roll of veniremen and their answers punctuate the droning expectancy.

Mrs. Shepherd sits across the CRIMINAL COURT, CHICAGO, May 18.—William Darling Shepherd dozed peacefully in his chair a dozen feet away today as four prospective jurors, one after the other, said under questioning that they would be willing to hang him on circumstantial evidence if they believed such testimony proved him guilty of murdering Billy McClintock, his millionaire ward. The four were accepted by the prosecution as the first panel of the jury and were tendered to the defense shortly after 3 p. m. L. F. Tuells, vice-president of a casualty concern, was added to the jurors in the afternoon session. Then the state turned over the panel of four men to the defense and William Scott Stewart began to question them.

CRIMINAL COURT BUILDING, CHICAGO, May 18.—Apparently calm and undisturbed by the ordeal, William Darling Shepherd walked through the narrow door from the "bull pen" into Judge Thomas J. Lynch's court today to answer the state's charge of murder for the death of William Nelson McClintock, his millionaire ward.

A crowd which taxed the capacity of the little courtroom saw him take his place near the defense counsel table; saw him turn and give a half smile to his wife, sitting a short distance away, and watched him intently as he settled himself to await the picking of the jury.

A dozen veniremen were called and took their places in the jury box. They were sworn and Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman read them the names of the attorneys and witnesses.

Leo Ettelson, single and a clothing salesman, was first questioned. Conscientious scruples against the death penalty quickly brought about his dismissal.

Dr. Charles C. Faiman, also under indictment, was in court, being surrounded by his bondsmen, Sergeant Peter Pacilli and John F. Geary of the state's attorney's office. He was smiling.

Three jurors had been accepted by the state when court recessed for lunch shortly after noon today.

They were Frank Stiever, insurance man; Stephen Shupen, machinist foreman, and Herman Brieske, garage man and motor car salesman.

A score had been rejected for various reasons, predominant among which were aversion to the death penalty, preconceived

More Than 100 Divorces Secured by Fraud, Charged

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 18.—A divorce mill with headquarters in New York, that "sold freedom" to the unhappily wealthy married, and made Rhode Island the "little Reno" of the United States, was under investigation by a grand jury today. More than 100 divorce cases alleged to have been fraudulently secured, some involving prominent persons, were included in the probe.

The assault by Attorney General Sisson on the divorce mill has caused consternation in several New York families. Granted decrees, these men and women have married again, and, with their decrees vacated, their marriages will become illegal.

RELIEF WORK TOLD IN SUNDAY'S TALK

Near East Help Explained At St. Mark's By State Director

Representatives of Near East Relief yesterday presented the work that is being done for the orphan children of Armenia in orphanages in Greece and in the Bible lands to the congregation of St. Mark's Episcopal church. In the morning C. H. Emmons, the state director, talked to the Sunday school and later to the morning congregation. He gave a word picture of the splendid work of Christian statesmanship that is being done in the name of Jesus Christ. He said this work is constructive in the interests of world peace and so far-reaching that it cannot be estimated.

"Not only that," he continued, "but the work is bringing very productive results in releasing every year to economic self-support about 12,000 persons who are taking their part in rehabilitating their nation, for they have been driven from their own land and cannot go back. At the base of Mt. Ararat a great nation is being developed. As the young people grow up and marry they in turn are adopting the younger members of the community and thus helping to carry on the work."

Boy Scouts' Work

Mr. Emmons gave an illustration of the work of the Boy Scout organization in changing the ideals of the growing generation and imbuing them with American ideals.

"At the present time," he said, "about 60,000 children are in the orphanages and over 40,000 in the relief camps. It is hoped that sufficient funds will come in to make it possible to take more into the orphanages."

At the meeting of the Young People's Fellowship in the evening C. V. REV. CALDERWOOD GIVES SERMON

Congregational Pastor Tells Of Power of Will In Religious Thought

Rev. C. M. Calderwood, pastor of Congregational church, spoke on "The Will in Religion" yesterday morning, taking his text from "and whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely," Revelation 22:17. He said:

"As we look through the New Testament we find that the early teachers of Christianity laid great emphasis upon the will as fundamental in determining life and character. We find many such phrases as: "He that doeth the will of my Father;" "The will of flesh"; "My work is to do the will of Him that sent me;" "This is the will of Him that sent me;" "The will of the Lord be done;" "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt;" "Whosoever will, let him come;" "The spirit wills, but the flesh is weak;" "If any man willeth to do His will, he shall know the teaching."

Early Teachers

As we think of it, we agree that these early teachers were right in emphasizing the necessity of dedicating the will to God. The chief purpose of all moral culture is to fashion the rational will so that it may become the regulative principle of the whole sphere of conduct. We call this regulation of our behavior and conduct, self control. It is the capacity to govern life by purposes and ideals.

"Without wills we have no governing capacity. Without a governing capacity, our lives are like a ship without a rudder or an automobiles without a steering wheel. The capacity to govern is the fundamental condition of moral virtue and human worth, and it is the characteristic of human nature. Animals are driven by blind impulse but man is directed by the will and the willed impulse.

Feeling, Sentiment

"Feeling and sentiment form a large part of our religious life, but they are not fundamental. The feeling must be educated and controlled by the will, if our lives are to be lifted above the animal. Feeling might lead one to intemperance, but the will steps in and halts or controls. Feeling makes one a coward, but the will makes one brave. The virtues which we call temperance, courage, perseverance, patience and calmness are not born of the feelings, but of the regulative will.

"The will is ultimate in religion. We believe in the sovereignty of the will. The sanctified will is equivalent to practical religion. In our actions it is the will that is the responsible agent. We do very little against our wills. Sometimes we say that we do things against our wills, but what we mean is that we do things which are contrary to what we know our wills should dictate. We do not always will to will the best.

"When Romeo went to the chemist to buy poison, he told him that it was to be used for illegal purposes but that he would give him a reward. Shakespeare tells us that the chemist gives Romeo the poison for the reward with the words, "my poverty and not my will consents." This was not true, for it was his will that consented. The temptation was too strong for his will. His will to receive the reward was stronger than his will to do the right.

Morally Responsible

"We are morally responsible because we are responsible for our wills. According to the character of the will is the character of the life. Action comes from thoughts and feelings, but the will controls both. The will controls the soul's moods. We are ruled by coldness, melancholy, fear and distrust because we do not will otherwise. We can will to love, to trust and to be glad. We can will our minds into the right attitude toward life and the means of the higher life.

"We are judged by the character of the will. An act may be good in itself, but if the will that directed the act is evil then the act is evil. A good will gives a good life and a strong will gives a strong life. If a strong will is evil, its strength carries it further wrong. So the first thing that we should be interested in is not that our wills be strong but that they be right. Wickedness of will is worse than weakness of will. God takes the will for the deed. God does not judge us by the achievement but by the aspiration. We are not judged by what we do but what we are sincerely trying to do.

Strength of Will

"If we are judged by the will, should we not give serious attention to the cultivation, training and strengthening of the will? We have seen what good things the good will can do and what great things the great will can do, then should we not educate the will that we may do both the good and the great? What should our will be? We are living in God's universe and He rules it. Should we not strive to make our wills conform to his? 'Not my will, but thine be done,' should be our prayer. Jesus prayed 'Not as I will, but as Thou wilt.' Let us will to will God's will and we will find that our wills will be directed in obedience to God's eternal laws and our will will be the necessary strength to attain the ideals of Jesus."

'POWER OF LOVE' TAKEN AS THEME

First Lutheran Pastor In Sunday Talk On God's Great Sacrifice

"The Masterpiece of the Ages" was the subject of the sermon delivered yesterday morning by Dr. H. C. Funk, pastor of the First Lutheran church, speaking from the text, Hebrew 2:3, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" Dr. Funk said:

"We are justly proud of our native land, 'The land of the free, and the home of the brave.' But God knows that we need the transforming power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ right here in our own America. We talk about the foreigners coming to our shores as being a menace to our country; but did you know that the number of murders committed in America are nearly three times as many, in proportion to the population, as there are in Italy; and twenty-five times as many as there are in Great Britain? Much of this, I think, is due to our lax enforcement laws, thus making this glorious land a prey for the criminal of the earth.

Transforming Power

"It is not too late to talk about transforming power of the Gospel as the real antidote for this condition. The fact is, man tried every way under the sun to save himself. He tried to live a perfect life, and we see the end of this effort in the self-righteous Pharisee, who caused Christ to be crucified. He tried to build a tower to the skies, and this ended in a miserable failure. Yes, man's failure was God's opportunity.

"This old world was a wreck, with all on board going down, and the most wonderful thing that the good God ever did was to hoist this world of ours out of its depths of despair and land it on saving ground. When there was none other to save the Almighty constructed a highway to heaven. This mighty deliverance Paul calls a great salvation; and this, it seems to me, is the masterpiece of the ages. God's plan for the salvation of sinful man.

Power of Love

"No other being was wise enough to find the way; no other was able to save. It seems to me that it took greater wisdom, and greater power, to save a sin-wrecked world than it did to make it. Yes, He was omniscient. He knew the way. But that was not enough. He must be mighty to save.

He was omnipotent. But, what was that wonderful power? The answer is found in John, 3:16: "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Truly, the power that saved the world was the power of love.

Two-Day Hike to Be Taken To Switzer Land Over Memorial Day

The Glendale Outing club is preparing to open the season with a two-day hike and camping trip to Switzer Land, at the head of the Arroyo Seco, on Saturday and Sunday, May 30 and 31, Chester T. Nye, chairman, announced today. All interested hikers are invited to join the various groups which will leave on Friday night, May 29, and spend Saturday, Memorial day, Mr. Nye said.

The trip may be made by automobile to Switzer's Relay, from where a four-mile hike over an easy trail will be necessary to reach the camp, which is at an elevation of 3000 feet. Many members of the party, however, are planning to go by bus to Pasadena then by the Arroyo Seco bus to the relay, where the hike begins. Busses leave Glendale for Pasadena each half hour during the day and the Pasadena Arroyo Seco bus leaves hourly.

Accommodations

Tents for Saturday night may be obtained or equipment may be brought up on the pack train for two cents a pound, Mr. Nye announced. All interested persons are asked to get in touch with Mr. Nye, 520 Fischer street, before May 22, for reservations and details regarding the trip. Special rates will be obtained if the size of the party warrants it. The camp is equipped with piano and radio and meals may be secured or groceries purchased from the local store.

Writer Asks Pope to Make Columbus Saint

PARIS, May 18.—A petition to the Pope for the canonization of Christopher Columbus has just been discovered among the papers of Leon Bloy, a French writer of the latter end of the nineteenth century.

Bloy was ardently religious. He formed an organization of writers, artists and scientists that had as its object Columbus' elevation as a canonized saint of the church.

LITTLE PLAYERS ENTERTAIN CLUB

Musical, Dramatic Program Staged Before Members Of Thursday Body

The program and social at which the Thursday club entertained its friends Saturday night proved a big success. The affair, which took place at the Knights of Pythias hall was preceded by musical selections played by the Piggly Wiggly Hawaiian orchestra.

The curtain rose for the first number on Bernice Gardner, Thalia Wilson and Adele Loyd, who gave a charming sketch in Colonial costume, accompanied by Evelyn Gardner at the piano and Trixie Teames, violinist. Janet Ord sang two numbers, Beverly Powel, Jean Campbell and Kemper Campbell assisting in pantomime.

Little Mary Joe Armour charmed with quaint recitations; Adele Loyd gave a fascinating gypsy dance and the final number a one-act play, "Putting Up a Prosperous Front," proved a splendid demonstration of talent. Dorothy Donnally, Lloyd Loyd, Betty Campbell, Carolynn Loyd, Ray Geib and Adele Loyd took part.

The entire program was given by students from the Little Players' studio, Miss Hazel Campbell presenting the program as a courtesy to the Thursday club. Following the program informal dancing was enjoyed, the Piggly Wiggly Hawaiian orchestra furnishing music.

Ink Paste Sandwiches Latest Tea Delicacy

HUDSON, Mass., May 18.—Ink paste sandwiches. These are the latest delicacy in town. Members of the Hudson post, American Legion and auxiliary, mistook a box of ink paste in the G. A. R. rooms for jelly. The paste had been left there by a printer. A box of sandwiches was resting on top of the ink paste.

Both boxes were taken into the dining room and the "jelly" used as additional filling for the sandwiches.

GLENDALE TO BECOME AIR CENTER OF SOUTHWEST

LOCAL PEOPLE PLAN OCEAN JOURNEYS

City Steamship Agencies Report Reservations For Ocean Trips

Many Glendale people contemplate ocean trips during the coming summer, according to the sailing schedules of Glendale steamship agencies. Some will go to Europe for the summer, others plan trips to New York and eastern points through the Panama Canal.

L. E. Archer, Pacific coast manager of the International Mercantile Marine, visited Glendale yesterday with the message that Panama Canal travel is the biggest in history for the spring months and will continue to hold the record throughout the summer. European business is exceptionally heavy also, he said.

Prospective Sailers

Some of those who will take to the ocean for their summer vacations are:

Henry A. Mitchel and family, 1520 North Pacific avenue, will sail for Holland on the Veedam, Holland-American liner, the latter part of this month. They will be abroad until September when they will return to America aboard the Leviathan.

Mrs. Clara Kent and daughter of 207 East Fairview avenue, and Ernestine Yeaton, will make the trip to New York City through the Canal Zone, going from there to Bangor, Me., the home of Mrs. Yeaton who has been visiting in Glendale. They sail June 15.

Other Reservations

Mr. and Mrs. William Hinson, 443 West Wilson avenue, and a party of six, have reserved a suite of rooms on the Kroonland, which sails June 15 for New York. The Hinsons have sold their Glendale home and will visit in San Francisco and San Diego before sailing. Mr. and Mrs. Hinson will make their future home at Asbury Park, New York. Business will force Mr. Hinson to remain in the east in the future, he said.

J. F. Springer Secretary of Laundry Men

J. F. Springer, proprietor of the Glendale Laundry, was elected secretary of Association Laundry Owners of California at the three-day convention of that organization just closed at Sacramento. Mr. Springer returned to Glendale today to be greeted by employes at the Glendale Laundry, who presented him with a leather traveling bag and many bouquets of flowers. A note attached to the traveling bag expressed the good wishes of the employes and the spirit of good will they bear toward their employer. Mr. Springer is very popular with his employes and their gift to him today is just another indication that they hold him in high regard. The fact that Mr. Springer is the new secretary of the state association means, among other things, that this city will receive additional publicity.

GLENDALE HAS DELEGATES AT MEET

Thirty-Two Local Residents Attend Convention At Santa Barbara

After three days filled with fun, frolic and convention business, thirty-two Glendalians, representing members of the Glendale Exchange club and their wives, have returned to this city from Santa Barbara. Already plans are under way for sending a larger delegation to the 1926 convention at Del Monte.

The local convention visitors took an active part in the affairs of Exchange clubs of California. R. E. Johnston, past president of the local club, nominated two candidates for state offices, both of them being elected. The new state officers are:

President, Louis Oneal of San Jose, re-elected to serve his third term.

First vice-president, George Emery, president of the Santa Barbara club.

Second vice-president, Max Wallace of Los Angeles.

Third vice-president, Ralph H. White, attorney of Martinez.

Secretary, James Jones of Santa Cruz.

Treasurer, Charles Palmtag, of Watsonville, re-elected.

Marshal, Jack Spaulding, San Francisco.

Sentry, J. L. Ferguson of San Mateo.

The Glendale delegates concentrated their pre-election activities on the naming of president, first vice-president, second vice-president and third vice-president. The candidates they put in the field and backed to the limit were chosen at the annual election Saturday afternoon in the closing business session.

Stirring nomination speeches by Mr. Johnston, urging the election of Louis Oneal and Ralph White, paved the way for these two men being swept into office. The real battle of the convention centered around the choice of president, Mr. Oneal being opposed by Lewis H. Smith of Fresno, said to have been selected by Harold M. Harter

One Glendale Delegate Had 'Ducky' Stunt

The Glendale delegation to the state convention of Exchange clubs, held at Santa Barbara, provided many of the stunts pulled at luncheons and business sessions, but it remained for T. J. Fambrough, 206 North Orange street, to provide the climax to Glendale's stunt program. Mr. Fambrough was one of a party planning to take a yacht trip on the flagship "Caprice" of the Santa Barbara Yacht club. As he was attempting to board the yacht at the dock, he fell into the cold waters of the harbor. W. R. Vanderwood, of 601 North Isabel street, proved the hero of the occasion, for he leaped to the rescue of Mr. Fambrough and pulled him out of the water. A change of clothing and they were both soon circulating again with other Exchangeites, but they did not take a yacht ride.

ARMY'S CHIEF CONSENTS TO INTERVIEW

Gil A. Cowan, Special Writer Of The Evening News, Talks With Hines

Through the courtesy of Col. James W. Everington, 1641 Ben Lomond drive, Gil A. Cowan of The Glendale Evening News staff was granted a half hour interview with Major General John L. Hines, chief of staff of the armies of the United States. Colonel Everington had the pleasure of entertaining the general at his home here.

By GIL A. COWAN
Written for The Evening News.

The man who fought his way to the topmost rung in military affairs sat back, magazine in hand, resigned to another interview, certain he had nothing new to say, traveling incognito from Santa Barbara to Los Angeles on a sunny Sunday morning, feeling quite well and in the prime of life despite the graying experiences of grim war six years past in which he made an enviable record and graduated, as it were, from colonel commanding an infantry division, to chief of staff of the armies of the United States.

Thoroughly Human

That gives you an intimate glimpse of Major General John L. Hines. He is thoroughly human, but reserved as you would expect a general to be. His selection of friends likely is limited; but, between friends, the writer found him after a visit to the home of Colonel James W. Everington here and coming from a visit with General John F. Babbitt at Santa Barbara, both of whom served on his staff in the Fourth division of the Third army corps, overseas in France.

Aviation, the Hawaiian war maneuvers, the citizens' military training camps, among other things, were discussed.

"It is gratifying to see the interest taken here in commercial aviation," was the word of praise dropped by the general, which particularly befits Glendale.

It is his belief that commercial aviation will develop rapidly and that soon the army's air forces will be but a mere "drop in the bucket" as compared with the civilian fliers who will be available in an emergency.

The government, however, needs to keep to the fore in the development of the science, one would gather from the general's remarks. And he was prone not to com-

AERIAL TRIP TO MEETING DESCRIBED

Journey To Santa Barbara Proves Transportation By Air Assured

By A. S. HALL
Of The Evening News Staff.

"Will aerial transportation ever take the place of rail and automobile travel?"

This was one of the many questions put to me Saturday in Santa Barbara shortly after I had stepped from the four-passenger cabin plane, "The Argonaut," in which Dr. T. C. Young, Mrs. Young and myself had flown from the Glendale airport to Santa Barbara, to attend the formation meeting of the Western Aero league at the Arlington hotel.

The answer to this question, foremost in the minds of all persons vitally interested in transportation, traffic problems and aviation, is probably best found in a description of the trip.

We hopped off at the Glendale airport at 10:10 o'clock Saturday morning. Our start was delayed a few minutes while an effort was made to get two mothering hens and their broods out of the runway. The chicks went one direction, Biddy went the other.

With the little chicks and their mothers out of the way, we started down the field. Gracefully the "Argonaut" took the air before reaching the roadway at the south end of the field. We were in the air.

One hour and five minutes from the time we "got the drop," that is, circled for altitude and banked back over the field, the big cabin ship was circling above Casa Loma field, on the outskirts of Santa Barbara, with Dr. Young studying the wind conditions to determine the best way to land.

In the one hour and five minutes we had covered the distance that it would have taken the fastest train on the Southern Pacific coast line about three hours to make, or an automobile from three and a half hours to five hours, according to traffic conditions. To have driven an automobile from Glendale to Santa Barbara in anything under three and a half hours, it would have meant "stepping on it" most of the way, and traffic would have had to be rather "light."

That explains the time-saving element, and if there is anything that the big commercial firms are interested in, it is saving minutes and seconds.

Another angle is the scenic possibilities. To really enjoy the scenic wonders of this beautiful state, you must see California from the air. Visualize the view gained from an airplane on such a trip.

After taking off at the Glendale airport, we circled over the golf course of Griffith park. Golfers below were plainly visible. I remember seeing one player, in a sand trap on the seventh green—and he missed his shot. We were too high to hear what he said, but could easily imagine what it was.

As we banked to gain altitude and get direction, Los Angeles loomed to one side. Then Glendale came into view as the big ship soared around. Prominent buildings, streets, a multitude of homes, were plainly noticeable.

Peaceful Valley

Burbank lay below us, before we could turn around in our seats after waving a farewell to those on the ground as we flew above the airport. The fertile San Fernando valley, with its numerous fields and farms, looked like a gigantic checker-board, the play-

Wedding Held In 'Argonaut' At Bell Meet

Dr. T. C. Young, alias Dan Cupid, did his stuff again yesterday at the Bell air meet, when he piloted Charles R. Adams and Miss Catherine Richardson into the jaws of matrimony, far above the fleecy clouds that overhung the city.

"Doc," because of his willingness and good nature, has been made the target of young couples seeking wedded bliss in the air. Adams, a member of the Bell Kiwanis club, under whose auspices the meet yesterday was staged, stuttered "I do" from the back seat of Dr. Young's cabin ship, the Argonaut, as it sailed over the new flying field at an altitude of 1000 feet. Twenty-five thousand persons greeted the couple as they stepped from the plane after the aerial wedding.

THOUSANDS AT DEDICATION OF FIELD

Mammoth Aerial Meet Held At Bell As Airport Is Officially Opened

Twenty-five thousand Southern California aeronautical enthusiasts witnessed a huge aviation meet at Bell yesterday when the new Bell municipal flying field was dedicated. Dr. T. C. Young of Glendale was in general charge of the meet, declared to be one of the most successful ever held.

Though more than twenty-five ships participated in the various contests and stunts, the meet was held without an accident to mar

FORM AERO LEAGUE AT SANTA BARBARA

Dr. T. C. Young Elected First President; Howard I. Wood Named Secretary; To Publish Magazine Here

Glendale is destined to become the aviation center of the Southwest. This is the opinion expressed by Glendale aviators and men interested in all branches of flying, following the formation of the Western Aero league and the election of two Glendalians to important positions.

Dr. T. C. Young, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee on aviation, and who was instrumental in the success of the recent Glendale air meet, was elected president of the Aero league. Howard I. Wood, secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, was chosen general secretary of the league.

The meeting, which is regarded as an history-making epic in aviation circles, was held at the Arlington hotel in Santa Barbara, on Saturday afternoon.

Those present at the meeting were: Dr. Young, Mr. Wood, Lieut. W. C. Rutter, adjutant of Ross field, representing Lieut. C. P. Kane, commander of Ross field; Earle Ovington, pioneer aviator and commodore of the Santa Barbara Aero club; A. L. Oliger, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce; Elliott Barrett of Los Angeles, attorney for the Southern California Commercial Aircraft association; Garey W. Carr of Beverly Hills, publisher of the aeronautical magazine, "Ace," and the representative of The Glendale Evening News.

Other Officers

Earle Ovington was elected vice-president, and Mr. Oliger was named treasurer. A field secretary will be appointed later. Members of the committee on by-laws and constitution are: Dr. Young, Mr. Wood, Mr. Oliger, Mr. Ovington and Mr. Barrett.

The organization, when perfected to the degree that its sponsors have outlined, will be the means of promoting aviation in all branches other than military throughout the Southwest. It is hoped to include not only California in the league, but to have chapters in Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Washington and Oregon.

Initial steps, looking toward the formation of an aero league were taken at the banquet tendered visiting aviators on March 14, in connection with the two-day aerial meet here. At that time Dr. Young was elected chairman of an organization committee. A. E. Isham, of Redlands, also a member of the organization committee, was the only member absent Saturday.

Outlines Purpose

Dr. Young, in opening the meeting at Santa Barbara, outlined the purpose of the organization.

"First of all, we must get away from the idea of having a Southern California aeronautical association," he said. "This is a matter too big to be split by sectional differences. The task before us is the promotion of aviation. We must get the public interested in flying, educate the layman to the value of aviation and its place in transportation circles. A great deal depends upon having the public behind us in this undertaking.

"It is not our purpose to dictate, but to interest the public, and the best way to do this is through the chambers of commerce. This fact was brought out most forcibly in connection with the air meet held in Glendale. They realize the idea is right.

"The promotion, location and improvement of landing fields is another important item. The mapping of airways must be attended to efficiently, and data on wind direction and such information must be collected for the use of flyers. Topographical

NOT ALL EVIL

How often we hear it said, "Every man has his price." When the Teapot Dome scandal first came to light and it seemed that everyone connected with the government was involved, one otherwise cheerful citizen became discouraged and exclaimed, "Everyone is crooked."

We hear that all chorus girls and movie actresses are wild, all women are inveterate talkers, all lawyers are crooked, all doctors think more of their fees than they do of saving life and restoring health, all plumbers are robbers, and so on.

When we attribute to an entire group or profession the characteristics of a few in that class, who have come to our attention solely because they are exceptions to the rule, we are not only thoughtless, but viciously cruel. No two people are alike; no two are of the same moral fibre. If a man is dishonest, it will crop out in whatever business or profession he engages. If he is inherently honorable it matters not what work he takes up.

Some movie people are ungodly. For all we know the majority of them may be so. But it is manifestly unfair to say that all movie people are immoral as long as there is one good one among them. We know that some lawyers are crooked, but we know that a great many of them are not. We defame these last when we say, "All lawyers are crooked." We know there is graft in politics, but we slander many good and honest men when we say, "Every man has his price." Once in a while a minister of the gospel goes wrong and there are people mean and unjust enough to say that these men are representative of the profession and that, therefore, all ministers are hypocrites.

It is the evil that men do that comes to light. The good they do, say the newspapers, is not news. So we hear about the crooked lawyer, the politician who can be bought, the chorus girl who is not virtuous, the minister who disgraces his cloth. And we are unjust and cruel to ascribe to an entire class the shortcomings of the few. Rather, the sins of the few should be a foil, a contrast to make the virtues of the many stand out more clearly.

John Fiske says that in a sinless world, goodness would have no significance; that in a moral world the knowledge of evil is indispensable. Many do not agree with Fiske that God created evil, but there is food for thought in his statement that "for strong and resolute men and women, an Eden would be a fool's paradise," and that a world without sin and suffering, one in which conscious life does not involve contrast, is unthinkable. At any rate we have this contrast of good and evil in the world. We can make evil of value if we set it over against good in the lives of people and by the contrast see good more clearly and esteem it more highly.

WEALTH AND CHARACTER

Wealth is a power that tries men's souls as nothing else. What a man does with his money, has he much or little, is one of the truest indices of his character. Few can stand sudden riches. Some months ago the papers were full of the details of a $100,000 wedding in New York city. We do not even remember the names of the principals, for they were not distinguished for anything but the vulgar ostentation that attended the wedding ceremony. The other day the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, jr., one of the richest men in the world, was married quietly in the presence of the members of her family, and a few hundred people attended the reception that followed. How many girls, having unlimited wealth at their disposal, could, like Abby Rockefeller, have resisted the temptation to make a gross display of her wedding?

"Prosperity," said Samuel Johnson, "alloyed and imperfect as it is, has power to intoxicate the imagination, to fix the mind upon the present scene, to produce confidence and elation and to make him who enjoys affluence and honors forget the hand by which they were bestowed." Sudden wealth is very disturbing to character. Happy is the man who can come into riches and still retain his old ideals and ambitions, his old friends and his old standards of living.

An Indian family in Oklahoma became rich through oil being discovered on their land. The squaw, thereafter, appeared on the street elaborately gowned in the latest modes, carrying two expensive beaded bags, one in each hand. This is not more ridiculous or pathetic than the spectacle of some white people trying to live up to sudden wealth, as, for instance, the $100,000 wedding.

ARMS AND PEACE

With the nations, including the United States, quarreling at Geneva as to when and to whom arms may be shipped, even the most confirmed optimist must grow a little discouraged concerning the achievement of a permanent and universal peace.

The United States won its point—the right to ship armaments to a government we have not recognized. Why should we sell arms and munitions to any country whatever? Why should we be so inconsistent as to claim to favor world peace and then go on manufacturing the things with which to make war and maneuvering for the right to furnish them to other countries?

If trafficking in arms were prohibited there might be some hope of peace. American arms and munitions manufacturers are growing rich, even now, it is said, furnishing the sinews with which to carry on the Spanish-Riffian war.

The United States should outlaw the manufacture of war materials before calling disarmament conferences.

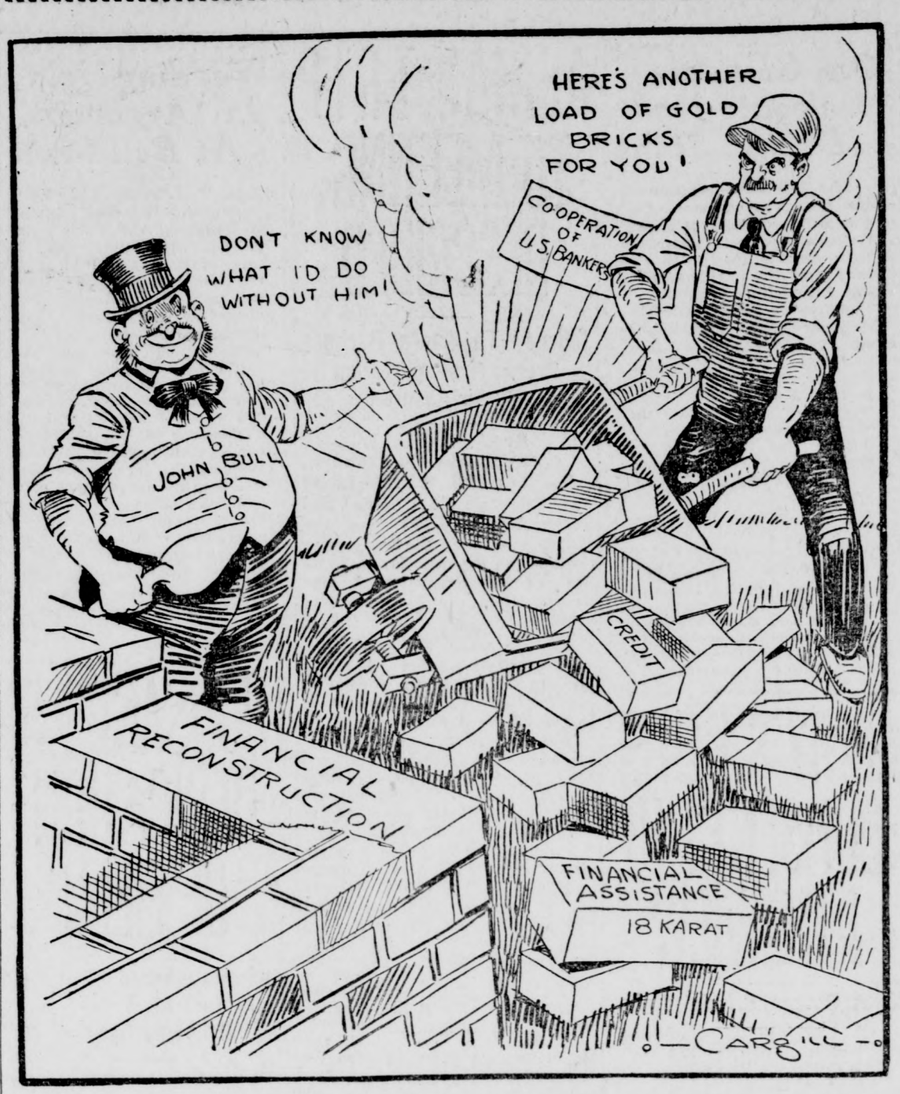
Fame is a funny thing, and Edison may be remembered by posterity as the man who wrote the questionnaires.

We become what we read. The man who reads "bull" about the oppressive capitalistic system soon becomes cowed.

One of the best things to take to cure that important feeling is an honest inventory of the mental stock on hand.

Artistic temperament seldom develops while the child is young enough to be spanked.

THE RIGHT KIND OF A CONFIDENCE MAN



Background

By DR. FRANK CRANE

In an address by John Franklin Crowell, former president of Trinity College, now Duke University, at a meeting of the Metropolitan Alumni association in New York recently, he said:

"I recall the criticism of some of our British friends on some of our university methods. I said, 'What do you think of our men who come over here (to England) as Rhodes scholars and others who come to attend some one of your universities?' He said, 'As far as your economic students are concerned, I find they know all about wool, cotton, lead, zinc and steel. They are specialists and thoroughly up with their one thing—but they have no background. They have not that background of intellectual judgment of principles which would have weight among practical men.'"

This calls attention to the fact that a man may be very proficient in his specialty and yet fail to obtain success because of his lack of background.

Background means that general culture and information which enables a man to correlate his own activities with those of the past.

It means a knowledge of the history of the past. For instance, many people are led away by some new religious fad simply because they have never made themselves acquainted with the history of the philosophy. They do not know that very same notion has been tried out hundreds of years ago and found wanting.

A boy should go to school or university more for general culture, more to lay a background for his future activities than to prepare for some one thing.

Horoscope

While Venus is in benefic aspect early in the morning astrologers read this as an unfortunate day, for Neptune, Mars and the Sun are all in evil place.

It is read as most unfavorable to love affairs and they who woo under this planetary sway should prepare for trouble in the future.

This is not a lucky wedding day, for it presages quarrels and even divorce, since many misunderstandings are forecast.

Again agitation regarding the army and navy is prognosticated and there will be much rancor among high government officials not previously interested in any controversy.

This is read as a rule menacing to all who are traveling on water, for there are to be late spring storms of great severity. Wise men and women will delay any new venture today. They should be content to pursue quiet routine in all their affairs.

Owing to the adverse vibrations that mark this configuration there may be a sense of haste and of thwarted energies.

Again automobile accidents of extraordinary character and serious results are forecast and it is well to exercise the most unremitting caution in driving.

The seers announce that there is no promise of a diminution of crime in the United States or anywhere else.

New measures almost as severe as military rule are to be employed in civic affairs, it is prophesied, in order to break up increasing gangs of thieves and marauders.

Narcotics and illicit alcoholic products will present problems increasing in gravity, it is predicted.

It will be recalled that astrologers for two years have foretold anxieties for the British government and they now declare that the horoscopes of both the king and the queen contain much that is far from reassuring.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid all changes in the coming year in which they may be exceedingly restless.

Children born on this day may be avid for adventure and quick-tempered. These subjects of Taurus usually get all that they desire in the course of their lives.

Today's Poem

SCORNED

The callow young were huddling in the nests,
The marigold was burning in the marsh,
Like a thing dipped in sunset, when he came.

My blood went up to meet him on my face,
Glad as a child that hears its father's step
And runs to meet him at the open porch.

I gave him all my being, like a flower
That flings its perfume on a vagrant breeze.
A breeze that wanders on and heeds it not.

His scorn is lying on my heart like snow,
My eyes are weary, and I fain would sleep;
The quietest sleep is underneath the ground.

Are ye around me, friends? I cannot see,
I cannot hear the voices that I love,
I lift my hands to you from out the night!

Methought I felt a tear upon my cheek
Weep not my mother! It is time to rest.
And I am very weary; so, good-night!

Alexander Smith.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNAIRD

CLARK KINNAIRD

Two maxims have been laid down for those who are endeavoring to acquire a new habit, or leave an old one.

The first is—Launch yourself with as strong and decided an initiative as possible. Accumulate all the possible circumstances which shall reinforce the right motives; put yourself in conditions that encourage the new way; remove yourself from the environment of the old; take a public pledge if the case allows; in short, envelop your resolution with every aid you know.

The second maxim, is—Never allow an exception to occur until the new habit is securely rooted in your daily life. Each lapse is like the letting fall of a ball of string which one is carefully winding up: a single slip undoes more than a great many turns will wind again. Continuity of training is the great means of making the nervous system act infallibly right, it has been established over and over.

William James adds a third maxim to the preceding pair: Seize the very first possible opportunity to act on every resolution you make, and on every emotional prompting you may experience in the direction of the habits you aspire to gain.

No matter how full a reservior of maxims one may possess, and no matter how good one's sentiments may be, if one has not taken advantage of every concrete opportunity to act, one's character may remain entirely unaffected for the better. With mere good intentions, hell is proverbially paved.

"A character," as John Stuart Mills says, "is a completely fashioned will," and a will, in the sense in which he means it, is an aggregate of tendencies to act in a firm and prompt and definite way upon all the emergencies of life.

William James observes that a tendency to act only becomes effectively ingrained in us in proportion to the uninterrupted frequency with which the actions actually occur, and the brain "grows" to their use.

"When a resolve or a fine flow of feeling is allowed to evaporate without bearing practical fruit it is worse than a chance lost; it works so as positively to hinder the future resolutions and emotions from taking normal path of discharge.

"There is a no more contemptible type of human character than that of the nerveless sentimentalist and dreamer, who spends his life in a weltering sea of sensibility and emotion, but who never does a manly concrete deed."

Timely Views

"I believe tremendously in the now urgent importance of developing a statesmanlike machinery of peace," said Glenn Frank, editor of Century Magazine, in a recent address, "but all international machinery will not work finally unless we have an international mind behind it, and by this I mean something more realistic than mere money mentality about the brotherhood of man. We must not only keep peace, but we must make a peace which is worth keeping. During the World war Wilson said the roots of war went down into all obscure soils of history. I would like to say today that the roots of peace must go down into all of the obscure and obvious soils of contemporary civilization."

A new literature of gloom had arisen, he continued, typified in the writings of Dean Inge, who has just arrived in America. Literature which holds little or no hope for civilization. This literature was sustained by the opinions of the following groups of people, among others, who believed civilization would decay and pass for the following reasons:

Biologists on account of the deterioration of the best stock; economists on account of machinery and the industrial organization of the world; psychologists on account of the prevalence of the crowd or mob mind; great administrators on account of the size and complications of present-day life; political scientists on account of the jealousy and tyranny of the majority in democratic forms of government, a majority which, since the beginning of time, has had to be prodded into progress by a minority and which is even now standardizing opinion in America and so sterilizing the mind of the nation; historians, who believe civilization is in the first stage of the death of culture, and moralists, who believe the younger generation has gone apostate, morally.

Mr. Frank spoke with conviction, however, of the "Literature of Hope and Peace," as he called it, which, though now little known and less used, was yet available and able to save civilization from the literature of despair.

"What we need," he said, "is genuine evangelization of scholarship, so that the germinal ideas of the literature of hope may be put into operation. We must depend on our wit, will, genius and concentration. We cannot think beautiful thoughts, look pleasant and wish ourselves into peace."

DR. WIRTH SPEAKS ON BIBLE STUDY

Teacher In Adventist College In L. A., Speaks Before Glendale Audience

Dr. W. G. Wirth, instructor in biblical exegesis in the College of Medical Evangelists of Los Angeles, spoke Saturday morning in the Seventh-day Adventist church on the corner of Isabel street and California avenue taking for his text Psalms 4:11.

"The world today," he said, "is faced with decay, disintegration and deterioration. Politically and socially this is true, as writers on present day events are telling us." The speaker quoted from Dr. Laighton, professor of philosophy in one of our American universities, in his book "Religion In the Mind of Today," in which in no uncertain language he pictures the universal decadence of our present civilization. "We are like a rudderless ship on a chartless ocean," he says.

From his text Dr. Wirth brought out that in the midst of all this world-wide degeneration, God is doing a work of preservation. "Through the efficacy of the gospel and its two salient features, loving-kindness and truth," he said, "this preserving work is going on. We are saved by the love of God, manifested toward us in the gift of His son, and this is coupled with the truth of God, presented in His word."

Truth Is Love

While the main points of the sermon was on "truth," the speaker brought out that the necessary antecedent of truth is love. In other words, as the apostle Paul expresses it in 2 Thessalonians 2:10. "We are saved by receiving the love of the truth. We cannot be really true to God unless we love Him, any more than a husband can be true to his wife unless he has love for her.

"When one studies the history of the church all through the ages," said Dr. Wirth, "one is struck with the fact that the departure of the people of God from the way of true doctrine was always caused by a lack of love toward the Heavenly Father. When one comes to the new testament, it is significant that in the letters addressed to the churches of the gospel dispensation, the first accusation brought against the church in the first letter is that it left its first love.

Thy Word Is Truth

"In a specific sense the truth of God is His word. Said Christ, 'Sanctify them through thy word, thy word is truth.' Were the church today studying the Bible more earnestly, and deeply there would be a greater love manifested toward God. The Bible is God's love letter to His people. And if the church today has become estranged from her Lord, it is in no small measure due to the neglect to read her Lover's letter."

Dr. Wirth earnestly appealed for a greater Bible study on the part of all true Christians. He appealed to the example of Christ, of Paul, of Jeremiah, and of Martin Luther in this respect. "If the church of today," he said, "is to be fired with the reform spirit of Martin Luther, it must be actuated by his devotion to the holy scriptures. Above all, Christians must represent heavenly truth in their own lives. Church attendance, theoretical Bible study are good in themselves, but they alone will not suffice. We must live the truth, ourselves."

Bible Study Urged

Attention was directed to the fact that Bible prediction shows that the generation of God's people, living before the second advent, will have no 'lie in their mouths.' The book of Revelation presents this last generation of God's true children as standing on the sea of glass. And the evident meaning of this is that their characters have the clear, crystal, transparent qualities of glass denoting their sincerity and spiritual honesty.

"Over the entrance to the Astor library in New York city," said the speaker, "are chiseled in marble the words, 'Above all things, truth beareth away the victory,' and if we would finally be conquerors over sin, we must do so through the winning power of truth."

Pastor Parmele announced the service next Sabbath will be given over to the graduating class of forty students of the Glendale Union academy. Elder W. F. Martin will preach the baccalaureate sermon. The class night program will be held in the academy, on Sunday night. And on Monday night, May 25, Elder P. L. Knox of Long Beach will deliver the commencement address in the chapel of the Glendale Union academy.

Highest-Paid Lawyer Once Walked Streets

LONDON, May 18.—Sir Patrick Hastings, former attorney-general in the Labor government, and one of the highest paid counsel at the English bar, has been telling audiences how he once walked the streets of London, literally starving.

Glendale To Be Air Center Of Southwest

maps of the entire nation must be made. These maps must show landmarks, altitudes of peaks, nearness to main-traveled highways, and other facts."

Mr. Wood was asked to make a statement regarding the possibilities of interesting chambers of commerce in such a project. Mr. Wood said:

"My experience has been that the best way to get in contact with the public is through the chambers of commerce. I am pleased at the way the chambers of commerce have shown interest in aviation. There were forty-two chambers of commerce represented at the Glendale air meet, and ten chambers of commerce wrote, after the meet requesting information, and stating they were interested in putting in a landing field.

Landing Fields

"Hardly a day goes by without some query coming to the office about landing field plans. Daily we get reports of new fields being contemplated, and certain chambers of commerce have offered to pay all expenses for Glendale aviators to come to their cities and assist in laying out fields. There is a big field for such an organization as proposed.

"Santa Ana is very much interested in aviation," said Mr. Oliger. "Our directors realize that all things point to aerial transportation. We find other cities asking for information."

When the question of membership was taken up, it was voted to make four classifications. These classifications are:

Individual—All flyers and persons interested in aviation and the promotion of aerial transportation. Memberships in this division to cost $5 yearly, each membership carrying one vote in organization matters.

Organizations — Chambers of commerce, manufacturers and flying clubs, such as the Santa Barbara Aero club. Membership to cost $25 and carry a voting power of five votes.

Sustaining—Large manufacturing interests, without voting powers.

Honorary—Issued only by the unanimous consent of individual and organization members present at two consecutive meetings, as recognition for services in the advancement of aviation. This classification carries no voting power.

There was considerable discussion among those present as to the proper name for the organization. They discarded the use of "association," and finally decided on Western Aero league. The name was suggested by Mr. Ovington.

Official Organ

The official organ of the league will be the "Ace," and after the meeting, Mr. Carr announced that the office of publication would be moved to Glendale on June 1. The "Ace" is the only journal devoted to aeronautics published west of the Rocky mountains. The name of the publication will carry Glendale as the headquarters, and members of the league believe this will be another medium of publicity for this city.

Another honor that will come to Glendale as a result of the organization is the fact that J. T. Edwards, internationally known map-maker, with studios in Glendale, will be delegated to make a relief map of the southwest, similar to the map of California now in the San Francisco ferry house. The proposed map will show landing fields, landmarks, prevailing winds at all fields and other data of importance to aviators. This map will be photographed, and copies of the prints made available to all fiyers.

Before the "Argonaut" took off Saturday morning for Santa Barbara, Mayor Harry G. MacBain and City Manager V. B. Stone drove to the Airport. Mayor MacBain entrusted a letter addressed to the mayor of Santa Barbara to Mrs. Young.

C. M. Andera, mayor of Santa Barbara, was at the Casa Loma field when the "Argonaut" arrived, and Mrs. Young handed the letter to him. The letter follows:

"Greetings from the mayor of Glendale, California, to the mayor of Santa Barbara, California. I congratulate Santa Barbara for its aviation activities and send an invitation to all aviators to use the Glendale Airport."

Motion pictures were made at the Glendale Airport when Mayor MacBain handed the letter to Mrs. Young, and again when Mrs. Young delivered the letter to Mayor Andera at Santa Barbara. Several "shots" were made along the route, as well as groups and close-ups of the men who attended the meeting Saturday. These pictures will become a part of the photographic records of the league, and will also be shown in the east.

The next meeting of the league will be held on June 13, at Ross field, Arcadia, when the army flyers, headed by Lieut. C. P. Kane, commander of the field, will be hosts. The members of the committee on constitution and by-laws will report at the next meeting. Invitations to attend the meeting will be sent to a number of aviators, chambers of commerce and airplane manufacturers.

Dr. and Mrs. Young flew back to Glendale Saturday. Their flying time between the two fields was one hour and four minutes.

J. V. Warren of Los Angeles has purchased a house from the Collins brothers in the tract on West Piedmont near Ramsdale.

Answering the call, "Come and get it," a large number of Legionnaires and their friends did justice to the spread prepared for them by the women of the auxiliary. More work was accomplished yesterday on the new Legion home than at any other time and at the rate the building is going up it will not be long before the Verdugo Hills post, No. 288, of the American Legion will be in its own quarters.

Persons interested in Christian Science will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. F. D. MacKay, corner of Los Angeles and Michigan avenues, to discuss the forming of a society. About twenty-four persons have signified their intention of joining the organization, when formed. The meeting will open at 8 o'clock.

La Crescenta Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular meeting tonight in the Smith building, corner of Los Angeles and Michigan avenues. Proposed improvements for the valley will be discussed, also the adjusting of water and bus rates. President Johnson will preside.

Mrs. Virna Harman Walker will leave shortly for New York, where she has been called to take part in the yearly pageant and jinks of the Sunshine club of that city. Mrs. Walker, who is the head of the Walker Ballet school, will stop over in Chicago, where she had studios for some time, to visit old pupils and friends. She expects to be gone all summer.

Girl Scouts of the valley are planning to take an active part in the Memorial day exercises in Glendale, where they will march in the parade. At the last meeting they held contests between patrols. Ten minutes were given by Scout Captain Hansen to prepare. Rope tying resulted in a tie between third and fourth patrols, under Inger Anderson of the fourth and Leoma Crowell of the third; flags, first patrol winners, under Dorothy Potter. The tenderfoot test review resulted in a tie among the four patrols, under the following candidates: Edith Busch, Helen Meade, Marie Perkins and Elizabeth Talbot-Martin. Tentative plans were made for the overnight camping and hiking trips. Exercises were under direction of Edith Busch, corporal of the first patrol. Catherine Goss of the fourth patrol led marching.

STORY OF SPAIN IN GATEWAY FILM

'The Spaniard,' Showing Real Bull Fight, Features Theatre Program

"The Spaniard" is showing today and tomorrow at the Gateway Theatre. It tells the story of a bull-fighter, hero of Spain, and an English society girl, a born coquette, always looking for new hearts to conquer. She meets and fascinates the Spaniard, who, however, warns her that he does not intend to be just another of her victims and that he is going to conquer her.

Ricardo Cortez plays the title role. Jetta Goudal is Dolores. Noah Beery completes the trio of featured players.

Dolores pays a visit to relatives in Seville and while there attends a bull fight, where she recognizes the matador, Don Pedro, and congratulates herself that she did not accept a common bull-fighter as a husband.

Thrilling Climax

An excursion to a Moorish castle in the mountains near Seville proves a trap. Dolores, seeking shelter from a storm, walks right into a castle, the owner of which proves to be Don Pedro. He holds her a prisoner.

The Spaniard is a firm believer in cave man tactics in taming his women, but he finds they don't work with Dolores. He undergoes a change of heart and consents to take the girl horseback riding. Dolores makes use of this opportunity to escape by slashing the Spaniard's horse across the flank and dashing madly cross-country, right into a bandit hangout.

How she fares with the cutthroats, how the Spaniard finally effects her rescue serves as a thrilling climax.

There is also a feature added attraction of Sioma Berngarten, famous pianist, conductor and composer at the Gateway Theatre today and tomorrow.

Cinderella

"The Price of Pleasure" now at Glendale theatre; intense drama, starring Virginia Valli and Norman Kerry.

A shop girl who has never had a good time in her life, is Virginia Valli's latest role. The popular Universal star heads a well known cast of favorites with Norman Kerry in this production, "The Price of Pleasure," a Universal-Jewell now showing at the Glendale theatre.

"The Price of Pleasure" was written by Elizabeth Holding and Margaret Orth, who are among the most famous of present day writers for screen production. Universal bought the story because of its particular fitness for Miss Valli and Kerry, and they exercised special care in selection of the supporting cast.

A strong vein of comedy runs throughout the story and this is interpreted for the most part by Louise Fazenda and T. Roy Barnes. Others in the supporting cast are Kate Lester, George Fawcett, James O. Barrows and Marie Astaire. The film was directed by Edward Sloman.

Radio obsession contributes to the mirthful scenes, while the main theme of the picture story is one of much dramatic interest. The picture is, on the whole, a Cinderella sort of story with Miss Valli as the shop girl Cinderella, working in the basement of a big store in a big city and living in a tenement boarding house. Prince Charming, in the person of Kerry, comes as a young man clad in the garb of a mechanic who desires to make a purchase.

The customer overhears the clerk complaining that she never, in all her life, has had a real good time, and he invited her to go to dinner and a show. She accepts and the result is a wonderful romance for her, for a week. The young man discloses that he is the son of a wealthy, aristocratic woman who is abroad and in an ingenious manner their romance evolves.

Baptists Planning To Attend State Meeting

Members and delegates from Glendale Baptist church are planning to attend the Baptist state convention which opens with a women's meeting tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at Immanual Baptist church, Long Beach. The convention will close Friday night. Delegates are: Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor; Mr. and Mrs. George McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Hobson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Kent, Mr. and Mrs. H. Park Arnold, Misses Delpha Wood and Miriam Rich.

It is estimated that the United States will have more than 19,000,000 autos next year.

Reel Thrills

VIOLA DANA, appearing in 'As Man Desires,' at the Cosmo theatre.

Milton Sills goes to sea again. He is Captain John Clay, of the two-masted pearl schooner "Lark," in First National's "As Man Desires," a rapid-fire drama of romance at the Cosmo Theatre.

Viola Dana, who is co-featured in the drama, in the role of a half-wild native dancing girl, falls in love with him and Sills takes her with the intention of making her into a "fine lady," as a rebuff to the memory of the girl whose fancied infidelity has brought about his disgrace and exile.

The supporting cast includes Ruth Clifford, Rosemary Theby, Tom Kennedy, aul Nicholson, Lou Payne, Hector Sarno, Anna May Walthall, Edneh Altemus and Frank Leigh. Irving Cummings directed under Earl Hudson, supervisor of First National productions.

'MANNA' REVIVES INTEREST IN WAR

Dobinson's Production Of Printzlau Play In L. A. Stirs Memories

One of the interesting things in connection with the production of "Manna" at the Philharmonic auditorium in Los Angeles is the revival of interest in the World war. The Olga Printzlau play is teaching people that they can discuss the universal conversion without boredom.

After the close of the war in 1918 came the Treaty of Versailles and the endless discussions of its terms. There were still more than a score of little wars flourishing over the world, and these lasted stubbornly for more than a year. Then the stiffnecked attitude of Germany forced France to seize the Ruhr. American and British troops remained on the Rhine for several years.

But the big show was over, and these various developments were merely in the nature of an afterpiece without the overwhelming motive and point of the main piece. People steeled themselves behind an armor of war-weariness and indifference. Not only did they refuse to think about war or talk about war, but they refused even to consider the cases of the men who had returned, in same instances, wrecked in health.

Runs This Week

This was a natural attitude, but a disastrous one, considering, for instance, that there are 3700 veterans of our wars, from '61 up, in the National Soldiers' home at Sawtelle. All these veterans depend on public interest in some degree, at least, for a bearable existence. But for the past few years, except by a notable few, they have been forgotten and neglected.

The cards of comment which are turned in nightly at the Philharmonic, however, reveal that the public, rested and refreshed, has gained perspective on the war and is now ready for constructive thought on the problems of its maimed defenders. It is this revival of interest which gives "Manna" its value and timeliness.

The play will run all this week. There will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

FOREST LANDS

ALTURAS, Cal., May 18.—Forest acreage containing from 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 feet of lumber in the Fandango unit of the Modoc National Forest, will be appraised and sold to the highest bidder within a short time, according to Paul G. Redington of San Francisco, federal district forester, by the local forest service. The tract is expected to furnish from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 feet of lumber annually for twenty-five years.

LANDOWNERS HIT

MOSCOW, May 18.—Former Russian land owners are hit rather hard by a bill, which has been approved by the Soviet Central Executive Committee, prohibiting former noble landowners to live on the properties which they owned prior to the nationalization of land in 1917.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

Glendale aviation enthusiasts and Exchange club members at Santa Barbara Saturday made this city better known.

Glendale realtors, fifty strong, attended the picnic of real estate dealers at Pomona, also.

Glendale Union High school the same day entered the coast football league, which will bring bigger games and greater publicity.

Those are three events chronicled in Saturday's edition of The Glendale Evening News, and the writer could speak of a half dozen personalities mentioned who also are spreading the fame of this city abroad.

The active interest in affairs, here and elsewhere, assumed by Glendale organizations and individuals, is going to make a community worth while—notable for its achievements. Are you playing your part?

This week sees the arrival in Southern California of the first tourists from the middle west, the vanguard of a million headed for the Pacific coast this summer.

It is California's diamond jubilee year. Events in many places are scheduled for the entertainment of these visitors. Glendale might do well to arrange for some attraction this summer to intrigue the interest of the newcomers. And by all means, invite your friends from the east touring through this section to see the Green Verdugo Hills and personally learn why Glendale is "the fastest growing city in America."

We do not want to forget that fact!

Governor Friend W. Richardson now raises the point that amendments to the Breed bill increasing the gasoline tax are unconstitutional. He is quoted as saying that the author, Senator Arthur H. Breed was willing the amendments, inserted in the Senate, be stricken out by the Assembly.

This writer was present at practically every session of the Legislature, both in committee and upon the floor, when the gasoline tax increase for new highway construction was considered.

Relative to the constitutionality of the wording of the amendments, there were at least a half dozen lawyers party to their drafting, and they sewed up the funds to a strict budget which the writer deemed unwise at the time. But Senator Breed acquiesced and when asked the point blank question if the amendments, relative to budgeting, would stand the acid test, his reply was, in effect, "Such questions are all bosh." However, that was not the language he used in expressing contempt for the very idea the governor now is advancing.

And if Breed ever said he was willing to have the Assembly strike out the amendments to which the governor objects, it was in open session. Instead, he repeatedly requested that the gasoline tax bill be passed by the lower house as amended in the Senate.

Those are the facts. And the Legislature, its members, state officials, automobile clubs and newspapers, all have had a hand in making a mess of the highway financing program. To give the credit for this failure to Governor Richardson, or Senator Breed, or the oil companies, or any one particular person or group, would be too charitable.

The governor had to protect his highway commission as well as the interests of the entire state; Breed had to get votes; the solons had to carry home some "pork" in the way of the Bayshore highway for San Francisco; etc.; and, what is more, the oil companies and the Automobile Club of Southern California set about to make it a mess.

It looks as though all jolly well succeeded, don't you know!

MAYTAG WASHING MACHINE LAUDED

Electric Helper In Home Is Described As Best On Glendale Market

So strong is the conviction that the Maytag electric washing machine is one of the best washing machines manufactured that James Webb, proprietor of the Glendale Hardware Co., 601 East Broadway, asserts himself that if a dissatisfied Maytag owner can be found anywhere, Mr. Webb will give his permission for anyone to try out their marksmanship on his washing machine department head, H. J. Cox.

Mr. Cox says, "Fairly good washing machines are like fairly good eggs, they will never be any better and will never fill the long felt want that a real good washing machine should do in the American home."

A real washing machine record for the Glendale Hardware Co., was rung up during the month of April states Mr. Cox when a grand total of 31 Maytags were actually sold. Mr. Cox continues, "It is no puzzle to us or any authorized Maytag dealer why people prefer, demand, recommend and insist upon the Maytag, America's leading washing machine today."

MEETING IN ATWATER TO BOOST WARDLAW

Formal Launching of Campaign to Take Place Tonight; Valley Banker Is Considered People's Choice

Formal launching of the campaign to elect Charlie T. Wardlaw city councilman from the First district will take place at the Atwater headquarters of Wardlaw tonight, when nearly one hundred leading citizens of the Atwater section and representatives from other sections of the First district gather to discuss campaign plans.

With virtually all officers of the Atwater Improvement association and many of its members already expressing their desire to see Mr. Wardlaw their councilmanic representative, it is believed the Wardlaw-for-Council agitation will become community-wide with the meeting tonight. Other nearby sections of the First district are expected to join Atwater Park in the campaign for the valley man. Arthur M. Gilman, president of the Atwater Improvement association, and a recognized leader in community affairs, will preside tonight.

That the lower end of the San Fernando valley, including Atwater and adjoining sections, will cast a big majority vote for Mr. Wardlaw at the June election was predicted today.

"A careful analysis of the vote cast at the nominating primaries proved beyond doubt that the people want Charles T. Wardlaw as their representative on the new City Council," P. E. Lipscomb said. "In seventeen out of the twenty-three precincts in the district, Mr. Wardlaw led in the voting. The fact that E. E. Lampton, who is now out of the race, cut down Mr. Wardlaw's vote is conceded. With only two candidates in the field, I believe Mr. Lampton's vote will go solidly to Mr. Wardlaw.

Urges Support

"Only in the east Hollywood section did other candidates run high, so that the desire for a real valley man seems to rest on Mr. Wardlaw. The largest valley centers gave him an overwhelming vote at the primaries. A solid front for Mr. Wardlaw in Atwater Park will assure the election of the veteran valley banker."

Mr. Lipscomb asked Atwater people to stand behind Mr. Wardlaw in order that new bridges across the Los Angeles river at Glendale and Hyperion boulevard and better and cheaper street car facilities may be had.

"Only the election of Mr. Wardlaw can assure these things," he said, "as others in the field are entangled in such a way as to make it impossible for them to promise relief from traffic problems and high carfares."

The meeting tonight will be held at Wardlaw headquarters, 3202 Glendale boulevard, near the corner of Garden avenue. It will start promptly at 8 o'clock.

Parents, Teachers to Meet

An interesting program is being arranged for the next meeting of the Atwater Parent-Teacher association, Mrs. E. V. Bacon, president, announced. The meeting will be held at the Atwater Grammar school on Atwater avenue, Friday night, starting at 7:30 o'clock. All patrons of the district are invited to attend, Mrs. Bacon said.

Bride-to-Be Is Honored

Three social affairs were held Saturday in honor of the forthcoming wedding of Miss Rosalind Gates, principal of the Atwater Grammar school, to Llewellyn Overholt, Los Angeles attorney. The wedding is to take place on June 29. Miss Gates was honored at a breakfast party Saturday morning. In the afternoon she was tendered a second reception, with a third at night.

Members of the new Atwater Catholic parish attended a card party at the home of Mrs. M. O'Connell on Seneca street, Saturday night. Funds were raised for erection of a new church in the district.

PICTURE RECALLS HOME OF FRIENDS

Evening News Brings Back Memories Of 50 Years Ago To Reader

When Mrs. Edmund J. Ullrich of 315 North Isabel street, went into a local store Friday night to shop she met a friend glancing over The Glendale Evening News. Showing Mrs. Ullrich the pictorial feature on page 3 under the caption "Fifty Years of Wedded Life," the friend remarked, "Do you think you'll live as long as that?"

Upon looking over the same edition of The Evening News, when she arrived home, Mrs. Ullrich found the feature referred to and recalled that the wedding party of 1875 referred to and the group gathered for the golden wedding anniversary in 1925, were all residents of Tiffin, Ohio, former home of the Ullrich family.

"We know all those old folk," said Mrs. Ullrich, "and the story concerning them in The Glendale Evening News, proves how very small the world is and how far reaching The News is in getting interesting news."

La Crescenta Women Possess Old Letters

Letters written to their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John Cox, seventy-four years ago by relatives, are among the prized keepsakes of Mrs. J. F. Nickel and her sister, Miss Sallie Cox of Nickel avenue, La Crescenta, daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cox. One letter was written October 15, 1851, seventy-four years ago, by the late Mr. and Mrs. John Gostick, relatives, from Bedford, England. The letter was addressed to Mr. Cox, who then made his home with his family at Reynolds, White county, Indiana. In this letter was also a pressed rose sent from England which has kept intact all these years. The late Mr. Gostick was formerly a writing teacher in England and is an uncle of Mrs. Nickel and Miss Cox.

Another letter written by the late Mr. Gostick to his relative in January 10, 1855, seventy years ago, told of the war between England and Russia. The letter stated that a great many men had been lost and also that trades are dull and provisions dear, while 600 militia were billeted at Bedford.

Another keepsake in the Cox family was the christening paper of the father, dated September 3, 1826, and which is ninety-eight years old. The paper gives the name of the parents of the late Mr. Cox, their place of residence, occupation. The place of the christening was St. Paul's parish at Bedford, Bedfordshire, England. The late Mr. Cox was organist at the church after he grew to manhood. The christening papers were signed by Thomas Lovilgn, parish clerk.

Builders or Destroyers

Did you ever notice the progress of the work on a big building? The steel workers, the brick masons, the plasterers, the finishers, the decorators, even the hod carriers, are each doing their part with one object in view—the building of a fine structure. They may not all be first-class workmen, they may be loitering on the job, some may quit work for a day or two, but if the building is ever to be completed they must all work to build up and not tear down.

What would happen if each day after the brick masons had quit work one of the owners of the building came along and tore out a part of the work that had been done that day and carried the bricks to a competitor who was also erecting a building? The first building would never be finished, it would never reach the ideal which the architect had in mind when he sketched it on paper. And the mental condition of the man who was tearing down his own structure would be investigated.

The same thing is true of any project. A city cannot be built up to reach its highest possibilities where one element builds and another tears down. We must work together with one object in view—to make our city the best that it can be. When we send our money out of town we are tearing down the community in which we have an interest and using the dollars to build up another community. If our homes are in Glendale our interests are here, and we injure ourselves when we injure the community.

Glendale's shopping facilities are of the best; they compare favorably with those of any other community in Southern California. Glendale people are proud of our mercantile establishments; they are a very valuable asset. We help tear them down every time we spend a dollar out of town.

NOTED 'Y' WORKER TALKS AT CHURCH

Bovia McClain, Prominent In Work In Orient, Tells Of Accomplishments

Bovia McClain, noted Y.M.C.A. worker in the Orient, and now "Y" secretary at Rangoon, Burma, told a large audience of Glendale people at Central Christian church today noon that the work of the Y.M.C.A. has been so well organized in the orient that the foreign directors could step out at any time and the association would continue to function unnterrupted under the guidance of the native leaders.

Two secretaries went from the United States to Japan and India years ago to inaugurate the foreign activities of the Y.M.C.A., and today the association is the greatest factor in the interest of world-wide peace and harmony in the Orient, he said.

Mr. McClain traced the growth the Y.M.C.A. in Indian. He told of the methods employed by native and foreign secretaries in organizing villages, placing them on sound financial footing, eliminating the spirit of hatred among the inhabitants, and promoting physical and mental recreation.

Thirty American and Canadian secretaries now direct the work in India, assisted by hundreds of natives, the speaker said. The first contact which has led to the widespread popularity of the "Y" was made through students at the Universities at Calcutta. These students, after they had graduated, went out to all parts of India and carried the mission of the Y. M.C.A. with them, he said.

George D. McDill, president of the Glendale Y.M.C.A., presided at the meeting.

Year Without Using Liquor Wins Wager

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Samuel M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, today presented himself with a $10,000 birthday gift. This is Vauclain's seventieth birthday and also the termination of the agreement entered into just a year ago whereby he was to forfeit $10,000 if he took a drink of liquor in the United States. He was interviewed in Atlantic City and was highly elated over winning the bet which he made two friends while in Mexico.

"The wager," said Vauclain, "was one of honor. My friends and I were discussing the prohibition question and I said that it was not a hardship on the people because a person can stop drinking if he makes up his mind to do so."

His friends offered to bet that he could not live in this country for one year without taking a drink. Tonight Vauclain goes to New York. With a twinkle in his eye he commented on the fact that New York has good liquor "they say."

"Are you going to try to get some?" he was asked.

"I might get it in the neck," he replied.

Wonders Of State Seen During Trip By Plane

ground of a nation, calm, peaceful, serene.

Lankershim next, and then in rapid order Van Nuys and Owensmouth. The Verdugo Hills had faded from our area of vision, as the rudder of the ship pointed towards them, and the nose of the plane towards the Santa Susanna mountains.

As the ship, swimming along like a big bird, neared Santa Susanna pass, over which we intended to fly, the rugged slopes of the mountains stood out majestically. Large boulders appeared as pebbles, while the highway below us looked like a silken ribbon that had been flung by a magic hand from a fairy loom.

Sentry-like, the Santa Susanna mountains reared skyward, giving the impression of the works of nature making a bold stand against the invasion of man-made equipment.

Ocean Is Next

Where a moment before we gazed upon peaks and trees, we left them behind as we crossed the pass. Here a sight that bankrupts the English language loomed before us. Through the front windows of the cabin could be seen the Simi valley, beautiful in all its glory, systematically laid out in farms, with tree-bordered roads traversing it.

In the distance the Pacific ocean was visible, the sparkling rays of a sun such as only Californians know, playing upon the waters. White-capped breakers rolled over the blue expanse to end on a golden beach.

At Ventura we soared out over the ocean, to get around Red mountain and Rincon mountain, which also rose to block our passage. The ship could have "hopped" over them, like it had leaped above Santa Susanna, but a dense bank of clouds shrouded the highest peaks, and we chose the "open road."

For nearly fifteen minutes we could look out to the left and see the ocean, with Santa Cruz, Santa Rosa and San Miguel islands visible nearly thirty miles away. To the right loomed the mountains. Ahead of us was Santa Barbara.

Three words, perhaps, best fit the trip from Glendale to Santa Barbara. I would call it "an aerial steeplechase." We taxied down the field to the starting post, the signal was given and we started, we followed the straightaway, then took the stonewall jump, then some more straightaway, to be followed by the water jump, the most difficult hazard on the the course. As we cleared the water jump safely we swung into the home stretch, and our aerial steeplechase was over.

A word as to the time. Except when we were climbing, the big ship was making eighty miles an hour against a heavy headwind, and at one time, Dr. Young "stepped it up" to eighty-seven miles per hour. But to look at the territory below us, it seemed that we were crawling along, so broad was the field of our vision.

As stated before, we "took off" at 10:10 o'clock. At 10:34 o'clock we were crossing Santa Susanna pass. At 11:03 o'clock we were over Ventura and fifteen minutes later we were circling over the landing field at Santa Barbara.

Many persons become frightened when one suggests flying. After a number of hours in the air, both in the United States and France, I am convinced that flying is safer than taking chances on the highways.

There was no discomfort riding in the cabin ship. We talked as we soared, while the big ship played tag with the clouds. The noise of the 200-horsepower motor was hardly noticeable, and the strong headwind did not reach us, safely entrenched inside the cabin.

If you really want to see California, do it in an airplane.

Burglar Takes To Heels as Owner Arrives

Returning unexpectedly to his home late last night, John Wiggers, 1442 North Chester place, entered the front door just in time to see a burglar, frightened at his appearance, dash out the back entrance, leap over a fence and escape.

The entire neighborhood was searched for more than an hour by Patrolmen W. M. Schilling and Edgar, without result.

The burglar had gained an entrance by forcing the lock on the front door. A careful check indicated the burglar had taken nothing.

Chief Of Staff Gives Interview To Writer

ment on General "Billy" Mitchell, who as an ardent advocate of air preparedness, seemingly sacrificed high rank to speak his mind. Yet, according to recent news dispatches, "Colonel" Mitchell may be returned to rank and again head the air service of the army.

General Hines likely knows what is contemplated, but he refused to say. The fact that he is more deeply interested in aviation than any other topic discussed, it seemed to the writer, is indicative of a forward looking policy being pursued in that arm of the service while he is the army chief.

Fortification of Pearl Harbor, the isle of Oahu, Hawaii, is another topic on which the general appeared ready to speak, but pledged to have such a program come through the secretary of the navy, Curtis D. Wilbur of California, and it would appear that Congressman Walter F. Lineberger, representing this ninth district in which Glendale is located, is going to be the spokesman for America's "Gibraltar of the Pacific." He accompanied the fleet.

As chief umpire of the combined army and navy maneuvers in Hawaiian waters, General Hines has submitted his report to Washington and from there comes word that the decisions reached by the board of umpires were as predicted. First, the United States is prepared, and second, greater fortifications are necessary at Pearl Harbor. It is estimated that these will entail the eventual expenditure of $50,000,000 in round figures.

What pleased the army chief, and he could boast of it, was the fact that not one life was sacrificed in the maneuvers. It showed him what a perfect working machine he has to depend upon. But there is something more than the standing army which he wants to see perfected.

An efficient National Guard and a localized citizens' military training camp program, as bulwarks of preparedness, are aims of the army; and it is his hope to make the latter more popular and more accessible to the youth as appropriations permit. Not one word of criticism would General Hines rent in the matter of President Coolidge vetoing the army's proposed Defense day test on Armistice day.

Of course, the army men would like to see it. But what the president says is final. No doubt General Hines will confer with the commander-in-chief when he returns to Washington the latter part of the month. Something satisfactory will likely be forthcoming from such a conference for the general has that way about him of guiding thought into the channels in which he is thinking. He is not opinionated. He is not severe. And he loves the army, the soldier's life, yet he is a man of peace, who knows the price of unpreparedness too well to see America stand by the wayside.

The HOUSE Of The ARROW

A SERIAL STORY WRITTEN BY A. E. W. MASON

Protected By The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"You will see. We are not so alarming after all, and your little client can put her pretty head upon the pillow without any fear that an injustice will be done to her."

"Thank you, Monsieur Hanaud!" Jim Frobisher cried warmly. He was conscious of so great a relief that he himself was surprised by it. He had been quite captured by his pity for that unknown girl in the big house, set upon by a crazy rascal and with no champion but another girl of her own years. "Yes, this is good news to me."

But he had hardly finished speaking before a doubt crept into his mind as to the sincerity of the man sitting opposite to him. Jim did not mean to be played and landed like a silly fish, however inexperienced he might be. He looked at Hanaud and wondered. Was this present geniality of his any less assumed than his other moods? Jim was unsettled in his estimate of the detective. One moment a judge, and rather implacable, now an urchin, now a friend! Which was travesty and which truth? Luckily there was a test question which Mr. Haslitt had put only yesterday as he looked out from the window across Russell Square. Jim now repeated it.

"The affair is simple, you say?"

"Of the simplest."

"Then how comes it, Monsieur Hanaud, that the examining judge at Dijon still finds it necessary to call in to his assistance one of the chiefs of the surete of Paris?"

The question was obviously expected, and no less obviously difficult to answer. Hanaud nodded his head once or twice.

"Yes," he said, and again "Yes," like a man in doubt. He looked at Jim with appraising eyes. Then, with a rush, "I shall tell you everything, and when I have told you, you will give me your word that you will not betray my confidence to any one in this world. For this is serious."

Jim could not doubt Hanaud's sincerity at this moment, nor his friendliness. They shone in the man like a strong flame.

"I give you my word now," he said, and he reached out his hand across the table. Hanaud shook it. "I can talk to you freely, then," he answered, and he produced a little blue bundle of very black cigarettes. "You shall smoke."

The two men lit their cigarettes and through the blue cloud Hanaud explained:

"I go really to Dijon on quite another matter. This Waberski affair, it is a pretence! The examining judge who calls me in—see, now, you have a phrase for him," and Hanaud proudly dropped into English more or less. "He excuse his face! Yes, that is your expressive idiom. He excuse his face, that face of his, yes. Now listen! I get hot when I think of that examining judge."

He wiped his forehead with his handkerchief and, setting his sentence in order, resumed in French.

"The little towns, my friend, where life is not very gay and people have the time to be interested in the affairs of their neighbors, have their own crimes, and perhaps the most pernicious of them all is the crime of anonymous letters. Suddenly out of a clear sky they will come like a pestilence, full of vile charges difficult to refute and—who knows?—sometimes perhaps true. For a while these abominations flow into the letter-boxes and not a word is said. If money is demanded, money is paid. If it is only sheer wickedness which drives that unknown pen, those who are lashed by it none the less hold their tongues. But each one begins to suspect his neighbor. The social life of the town is poisoned. A great canopy of terror hangs over it, until the postman's knock, a thing so welcome in the sane life of every day, becomes a thing to shiver at, and in the end dreadful things happen."

So grave and quiet was the tone which Hanaud used that Jim himself shivered, even in this room whence he could see the sunlight sparkling on the river and hear the pleasant murmur of the Paris streets. Above that murmur he heard the sharp knock of the postman upon the door. He saw a white face grow whiter and still eyes grow haggard with despair.

"Such a plague has descended upon Dijon," Hanaud continued. "For more than a year it has raged. The police would not apply to Paris for help. No, they did not need help, they would solve this pretty problem for themselves. Yes, but the letters go on and the citizens complain. The police say, 'Hush! The examining magistrate, he has a clue. Give him time!" But the letters still go on. Then after a year comes this godsend of the Waberski affair. At once the prefect of police and the magistrate put their heads together. 'We will send for Hanaud over this simple affair, and he will find for us the author of the anonymous letters. We will send for him very privately, and if any one recognizes him in the street and cries "There is Hanaud," we can say he is investigating the Waberski affair. Thus the writer of the letters will not be alarmed and we—we excuse our faces.' Yes," concluded Hanaud, heatedly, "but they should have sent for me a year ago. They have lost a year."

"And during that year the dreadful things have happened?" asked Jim.

Hanaud nodded angrily.

"An old, lonely man who lunches at the hotel and takes his coffee at the Grande Taverne and does no harm to any one, he flings himself in front of the Mediterranean express and is cut to pieces. A pair of lovers shoot themselves in the Foret des Moissonieres. A young girl comes home from a ball; she says good night to her friends gaily on the doorstep of her house, and in the morning she is found hanging in her ball dress from a rivet in the wall of her bedroom, whilst in the hearth there are the burnt fragments of one of these letters. How many had she received, that poor girl, before this last one drove her to this madness? Ah, the magistrate. Did I not tell you? He has need to excuse his face."

Hanaud opened a drawer in his desk and took from it a green cover.

"See, here are two of those precious letters," and removing two typewritten sheets from the cover he handed them to Frobisher. "Yes," he added, as he saw the disgust on the reader's face, "those do not make a nice sauce for your breakfast, do they?"

"They are abominable," said Jim. "I wouldn't have believed—" he broke off with a little cry. "One moment, Monsieur Hanaud!" He bent his head again over the sheets of paper, comparing them, scrutinizing each sentence. No, there were only the two errors which he had noticed at once. But what errors they were! To any one, at all events, with eyes to see and some luck in the matter of experience. Why, they limited the area of search at once!

"Monsieur Hanaud, I can give you some more help," he cried enthusiastically. He did not notice the broad grin of delight which suddenly transfigured the detective's face. "Help which may lead you very quickly to the writer of these letters."

"You can?" Hanaud exclaimed. "Give it to me, my young friend. Do not keep me shaking in excitement. And do not—oh! do not tell me that you have discovered that the letters were typed upon a Corona machine. For that we know already."

Jim Frobisher flushed scarlet. That is just what he had noticed with so much pride in his perspicuity. Where the text of a sentence required a capital D, there were instead of two noughts with the diagonal line separating them (thus, %), which are the symbol of "per cent"; and where there should have been a capital S lower down the page, there was the capital S with the transverse lines which stands for dollars. Jim was familiar with the Corona machine himself, and he had remembered that if one used by error the stop for figures, instead of the stop for capital letters, those two mistakes would result. He realized now, with Hanaud's delighted face in front of him—Hanaud was the urchin now—that the surete was certain not to have overlooked those two indications even if the magistrate at Dijon had; and in a moment he began to laugh, too.

"Well, I fairly asked for it, didn't I?" he said as he handed the letter back. "I said a wise thing to you, Monsieur, when I held it fortunate that we were not to be on opposite sides."

Hanaud's face lost its urchin look.

HOW TO SOLVE THE CROSS WORD PUZZLE

The way to solve the Cross Word Puzzle is to fill in the white squares of the diagram with the words which agree with the accompanying definitions. The definitions are numbered to correspond with the numbers on the diagram.

Any word defined in the text under "HORIZONTAL" will begin at its number, shown on the diagram, and will extend all the way across to the first black space to the right of that number. That is, the word must begin in the square that contains its identifying number, and extend as far as the white squares continue uninterruptedly.

Any word defined under "VERTICAL" will also begin in the white space that contains its number, but will extend downward as far as the white spaces remain uninterruptedly.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Copyright, 1925, By The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

UNCLE WIGGILY AND NAUGHTY NIPPER

Once upon a time Nipper Long-ears, one of the new little bunnies who had come to Uncle Wiggily with his new wife—once upon a time Nipper was naughty. He was a bad little rabbit in the Hollow Stump School. The Lady Mouse Teacher caught Nipper whispering, which was against the rules.

"Please don't whisper again, Nipper," squeaked the Lady Mouse. She always made it a rule not to punish her little pupils for whispering the first time. But if they whispered again—the same day—oh, then, well, you shall see!

And Nipper whispered again. He leaned over and said to Floppy Twistytail, the boy piggie:

"Oh, Floppy, I'm not afraid to talk in school!"

The Lady Mouse Teacher heard him and said:

"Nipper, you are naughty, I'm sorry to say! Therefore, I must put you in the punish tree. Come!" and she led Nipper out of the Hollow Stump School while all the other little boy and girl animal pupils held their breaths. It was terrible!

Outside of the animal school was another hollow stump, not large enough for classes, but large enough for a place where naughty and mischievous pupils could be shut in as a punishment, just as, sometimes, you boys or girls may have been put in a dim closet a while.

"You must stay all alone in the punish tree until noon time when I will let you out," said the Lady Mouse. She made Nipper climb up to the top of the little hollow stump and jump down inside. Then over the top the Lady Mouse put a toadstool for a cover to keep out the sunlight. She went back to her class, leaving naughty Nipper in the stump.

At first Nipper only laughed to himself. He didn't mind staying in the punish tree all alone. It wasn't very dark. Besides, animals are not afraid in the dark. Some foolish boys and girls are—but not animals.

After a while Nipper heard jolly shouts and laughter and he knew it was the time of the morning recess for the Hollow Stump School. The animal children were racing about having fun. Then, for the first time Naughty Nipper wished he hadn't whispered.

He heard voices close to the stump and he knew his brothers and sisters and chums were gathering about. Then Nipper saw a little hole in one side of the stump and he thought of a trick. Through the hole he thrust his funny, short little tail, like a bunch of cotton. He wiggled his tail in and out of the hole.

"Oh, look!" cried Jingle, one of his sisters. "That's Nipper's tail! Oh, isn't it funny?" She laughed and all the others laughed. Then he thrust his tail out of the hole again and twisted it, making the boys and girls laugh more than ever.

"I'm glad teacher put me in the punish tree!" chuckled Nipper. "I'm having fun here!"

Uncle Wiggily happened to hop past the Hollow Stump School. He stopped to speak to the Lady Mouse Teacher, and she told him about Nipper, and showed where the little rabbit boy was in the punish tree.

"But he is having a good time there, said Uncle Wiggily, who was the new daddy of Nipper. "When one is punished one shouldn't be jolly. I must teach Nipper a lesson!"

When recess was over, and all the other pupils hurried back to the school, Uncle Wiggily went softly over to the punish tree. Nipper's tail was still sticking out of the hole, for he did not know the other boys and girls had gone in. And Uncle Wiggily caught hold of Nipper's tail and pinched it, at the same time making a funny, grunting noise.

"Oh, who is there? Who has my tail? Don't pull it off! Who are you?" cried Nipper, for being inside the hollow punish tree he couldn't see outside, the hole only being large enough for his tail. "Oh, let go! Don't pull my tail off!" begged the little rabbit boy.

"Are you going to be naughty any more?" asked Uncle Wiggily in a deep voice, such as a bear might have if he caught cold.

"Oh, I'll be good! I'll be good!" promised Nipper. "I'll never whisper in school agan!"

"Very well, then, I'll tell the Lady Mouse Teacher to let you out," growled Uncle Wiggily. Back hopped the bunny gentleman to the school, to tell the teacher what had happened. And before Miss Mouse let out Nipper, why, Uncle Wiggily had gone away. So, unless he reads this story, Nipper will never know who pinched his tail. Anyhow he was good after that. And if the rag doll doesn't hide down inside the molasses jug and get so stuck up she won't speak to the jumping Jack I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the lonely rock.

PLANTERS WARNED

PORT WORTH, Tex., May 18.—Bankers are warning cotton planters against too great expansion of acreage following the recent rains. T. B. Yarbrough, of Fort Worth, said far-sighted business men were most anxious that farmers raise sufficient feed crops and vegetables for their own use.

A relatively larger amount of America's surplus flour is being shipped to Europe and a much smaller amount to Asia.

RALPHS TO OPEN HOLLYWOOD STORE

Pioneer Los Angeles Grocer to Have New Building On Sunset Boulevard

Ralph's Grocery will open a complete food market in Hollywood at 7257-59 Sunset boulevard tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Nothing will be for sale, but nearly 100 demonstrators will serve refreshments and samples. Al Wesson's Hollywoodland orchestra will furnish music. Everybody is welcome—the doors will be open from 2:30 until 6 and from 7 to 9:30.

Ralph's Grocery Co. has operated in Los Angeles as successful merchants for 51 years. This is its first entrance into Hollywood. It has tried to make the store a strictly Hollywood store. The company owns the land and building. Both the building and fixtures have been built to suit every modern convenience known to the grocery trade. The building fronts 100 feet on Sunset boulevard and 160 feet on Poinsetta place. All departments in the market, including grocery, cigars, candy, bakery, fresh and smoked meats, delicatessen and fruit, will be owned and operated by Ralph's Grocery Co. Seven storerooms, however, outside the market will be rented to different lines of business, including a drug store. All stores in the building have been built free from posts except the warehouse, which is two stories high in the rear, 60x100 feet.

Ralph's is one of the few firms in the food line that maintains a delivery department. The store will open for business on Wednesday, and on and after Monday, May 25, will deliver in Beverly and Hollywood from this new store.

A recent survey shows that France has about 9,000,000 hydro-electric horse-power available.

Heart and Home — Health and Happiness

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

A PAINFUL SUBJECT

Midnight, July 3, 1920: How I suffer! Oh, Allah, how I suffer! What shall I do for this terrible thing which affecteth me? I don't remember ever having studied anything about such a condition in my medical course. I never was called in consultation to treat a case like mine. How I wish I had been, then I would know what to do.

How can I hobble over the hot cobblestones tomorrow in this desolate Albanian town and make my medical calls?

I have very few books with me. I look them over to see if perchance some one will give me some light on my affliction. "Aspects of the Balkan Problem". No one can interest me in any Balkan problem when I have such a painful one of my own. "Diet and Health." How could I ever have been cheerful enough to have written that?

Ah! "Handbook for the Sanitary Troops". Surely, something in that to help me! I look in the table of contents: Hemorrhages, Fractures, Dislocation, Insensibility, Fits, Gas Poisoning, and a lot of minor things, but not one solitary word about my trouble. Authors are such idiots.

"How to Live"! Something in that, sure. I look in the index. Good! Here is the word—eagerly I pounce upon it—CORN. "Corn, Food value of, p. 66"! Food value of! How to live and not a word on how to prevent or how to treat a soft corn? Oh, soft corn, thou art not soft in suffering.

"A Woman in the Balkans". Me. A desolate woman in the Balkans. Home mail lost and a soft corn.

A Muezzin is now in one of the Turkish minarets chanting of Allah and reminding the devoted that it is time to pray. How plaintive, how beautiful, how melodious it is! How my toe throbs!

I have been having so many appealing letters lately regarding corns, that I am running this excerpt from my Balkan diary so that you will know I can write on this subject very feelingly.

Definition. Corns are local overgrowths of the horny layers of the skin due to intermittent pressure, usually from badly fitting shoes. There is a personal factor involved, for some people who are no more careful than others to have their shoes fit, do not have them. It is noticed, however, that those who go without shoes for a long time, from illness or other causes, find that their corns disappear.

Corns differ from callouses in having a central core that grows down toward the under layer of the skin. They become painful on account of this central core pressing on the nerves. They usually are painful only from pressure, but they may be spontaneously painful, especially during damp weather, when they seem to swell somewhat.

The primary reason for a corn is Nature's effort to protect the part which is being pressed upon, but no one seems to know why this peculiar development of the core happens. Sometimes there may be more than one core in the corn. Perhaps you can call that a multiple corn.

Site. Corns usually occur on the toes, where they form hard corns; or between the toes where on account of being kept moist, they form soft corns. Sometimes they will come on the soles of the feet, especially in people with flat feet, and then it is particularly painful to walk. Occasionally corns may appear on the palms of the hands. Tennis players and manual laborers may be afflicted with this type.

Tomorrow, we'll talk on the treatment of corns.

Tomorrow—Corns and Bunions

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e. if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Lamb en Casserole: Buy either one and one-half pounds of lean stewing lamb, or four lamb chops cut in small pieces. Brown this in two tablespoons of bacon fat in your frying pan, then transfer the meat to a baking dish. Add one cup of boiling water, one teaspoon of salt, and one tablespoon of flour to the fat and juices in the frying pan and, when thickened, turn this over the chops in the baking dish; also add three large carrots pared and diced, then cover the dish and bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Take out and add either a can of tomatoes or one quart of freshly stewed tomatoes, and bake for one hour more with the dish again covered, before serving.

Orange Charlotte: Soak one box of gelatine (or two tablespoons) in one-third cup of cold water for five minutes, then dissolve it in one-third cup of boiling water; stir in one cupful of orange juice and pulp combined, the juice of two lemons, and three-quarters of a cupful of granulated sugar. Set aside for a short while till it begins to stiffen (that is, when it begins to cling to the sides of the bowl, when bowl is tipped), then quickly fold in the stiffly-whipped whites of three eggs. Beat for a moment, then pour the mixture into a wet mould which you have previously lined with sections of orange. Chill and serve.

Quick Celery Relish: As this may be made in one and one-half hours, it is a boon to the housekeeper whose pickle shelf has run low. Put one and one-half cups of chopped uncooked celery into a bowl and add four teaspoons of powdered sugar, one teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of mustard powder and one-fourth cup of vinegar. Mix well and let stand in a cold place for ninety minutes. Just before serving, drain all the liquor.

Baked Corned Beef Hash with Cheese Sauce: Combine equal parts of diced, left-over cooked corned beef and diced cooked potatoes. Season to taste with salt and pepper, place in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs, dot with butter-bits and bake till brown in a hot oven. Serve with this hot sauce poured over it: Chop one-half pound of mild American cheese fine and put it over a moderate fire with three tablespoons of sweet cold milk. When heated and melted, add one beaten egg, a pinch each of salt and pepper and stir for a moment or two before serving.

Tomorrow—Answers to Inquiries

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

ARE YOU TOO STOUT?

If you are going to wear the skimpy new dresses the shops are selling as the proper thing for summer you will have to be reasonably slim. You cannot show fat arms in a sleeveless frock; nor two or three chins with the new broad neckline. Above all, you cannot wear skirts a few inches below the knees if your legs are elephantine. The smartest frocks nowadays look as though they were made by wrapping a yard of material around the figure.

You must be slim, you must even be flat. If you're short waisted you can pretend you're not by having your waist cut straight and putting the belt somewhere around the hips. If you have a full bust, which is a great crime these days, you can probably most successfully conceal it by wearing one of the new combination corsets and brassieres. If well cut these are snug around the hips, but give plenty of room around the waist and are snug again at the bust. They are better than a tight brassiere in disposing of unwanted fat and have the extra advantage of giving a smooth unbroken line to the figure, with no ugly ridge where a corset either pushes up flesh or a brassiere pushes it down.

It is impossible to give ideal measurements for the present "smart" figure. Formerly the perfect bust measurement was 36, every average sized woman of average weight wore size 36 tailored suits. Nowadays 34 or even 33 is the ideal, which must mean that the average weight is about ten pounds less. A fairly large woman, of course, cannot hope to have as slender a bust measurement as 34, but she should measure from two to four inches less than three or four years ago; that is, if she wants to look as well in the present-day skimpy clothes as she did in the styles of some years back.

Pat—When mixing ammonia with peroxide as a bleach for superfluous hair the proportions are about equal. If there is less ammonia it will not matter much as the peroxide does most of the bleaching. There is no special weight for growing children as general health is all that should be considered.

The boyish flat figure is still smart

Wed This Morning

The marriage of Miss Alice Elizabeth Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Finn of 218 East Garfield street, and Edwin J. Albright, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Garfield of 1912 Gardena avenue, was solemnized this morning, Monday, May 18, 1925, with the celebration of nuptial mass at 8:30 o'clock at Holy Family Catholic church, South Louise street and East Elk avenue. Rev. Michael Galvin, parish priest, was the officiant.

Beautiful bridal music was given by Paul Finstein's stringed quartet; Gertrude Warren Barry and Marie Se Legue, vocalists; and Mrs. E. J. Lunnenschloss, church organist. The quartet played the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn marches; "Largo" from "The New World Symphony" (Dvorak); "Andante Religioso" (Thome); "Call Me Thine Own" (Halevey); "O Promise Me;" and "I Love You Truly" (Bond). Gertrude Warren Barry sang "Agnes Dei" (Bizet); and Marie Se Legue, "Ave Maria" (Gounod), with violin obligato by Mr. Finstein. Mrs. Lunnenschloss was accompanist for the songs.

Miss Finn wore a pink georgette ensemble suit, the dress being heavily embroidered in floral design. Her hat was poke effect with transparent brim. She carried a bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. Finn gave his daughter in marriage. Attending the bride were her sister, Miss Mildred Finn, and Miss Cleo Redd. Miss Finn wore green taffeta with white hat, and Miss Redd, pink taffeta, with white hat. Each carried an arm bouquet of sweetpeas in pink and lavender shades.

Mr. Albright was attended by his brother, Fred E. Albright, Jr., as best man, R. F. and W. M. Doll were ushers.

Following the ceremony at the church Mr. and Mrs. Albright were honored at a wedding breakfast for members of their families at the Finn home. This afternoon a reception was held for the young couple at radio broadcasting station KNX, Hollywood, where Mr. Albright is well known to radio fans as "The Hired Hand."

Late this afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Albright left for a motor trip that will be of several weeks' duration and during which they will visit cities and places of interest in the southern and northern part of the state. They will make their home in Hollywood.

Their wedding is of wide interest in Glendale, where both are well known. Both came to Glendale five years ago, Mrs. Albright and her family from Boston, and Mr. Albright and his family from Chicago. Both are prominent in Holy Family church. Mrs. Albright attended Glendale Union High school, serving as president of the student body. She graduated in June, 1922. Mr. Albright is well known in musical circles of the southland as a talented baritone. He is prominent in Glendale council, Knights of Columbus, and the local Elks' lodge. He is one of the most popular radio announcers heard over the air.

MERCHANTS BEAT PASADENA PAINTS

Even Series By Win At Brookside Park Sunday; Will Meet Again

The Merchants evened up the series with the Pasadena Paints by trimming the Crown City crew, 10 to 7 at Brookside park yesterday afternoon. Johnny Cryan was the batting star for Glendale, getting three hits out of four times at bat.

Kautz was on the mound for the local aggregation and held the Painters to nine scattered hits, while his team mates were gathering fifteen bingles off Baker. Two errors by Pasadena helped to fatten the Glendale score.

The Painters gave the Merchants a drubbing in the first game, played here a week ago yesterday. Since that time "Pep" Kerwin instilled a lot of pep into the players, and they went like a house afire yesterday. The third game will be played next Sunday.

BASEBALL

This afternoon's game in the Twilight league will be between the Huli Trucks and the Firemen. Both teams have scored victories in the first week, and first place will be decided today. The game will be played at the Broadway High school grounds, starting at 5:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow it will be the Postoffice employes and the Radio crew.

The Shell Oilers made it twenty-seven in a row yesterday when they defeated the Pasadena Merchants, 9 to 3. F. Tally pitched for the Oilers, with Thomas hurling for the Merchants.

Burbank nosed out Zelzah 3 to 2 yesterday at Burbank when Johnny Moore drove in two runs. The game was a benefit for Jay Nofziger, whose daughter was killed in an automobile accident.

Lankershim had a field day at the bay against Hobbs Batteries yesterday, winning 11 to 10. Lankershim collected twenty-four hits.

Covering Long Distances

CHUCK MELLOR, winner of the Boston Marathon, who may be matched against Albin Stenroos, Finn, who won the Olympic marathon in Paris last year. The Finn is in America seeking runners who can travel the long paces with him.

-BETTER STEP ON IT, YOU'RE A PARAGRAPH BEHIND!
HE BEAT DE MAR, A TYPESETTER, IN THE BOSTON MARATHON
STENROOS WILL GIVE HIM A NECK AND NECK BATTLE
DD CHUCK MELLOR, AMERICAN MARATHON CHAMPION

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News

Because Albin Stenroos, winner of the Olympic marathon last year, is a Finn he is supposed to train on dried fish for his races.

He came to this country a couple of weeks ago to show the result of this diet to Americans.

That being the case here's hoping that he meets our latest marathon star, who by the same token must train on nuts, bolts, and other spare parts of generai machinery.

That new star is Charlie "Chuck" Mellor, the Chicagoan, who won the Boston marathon, blue ribbon long distance event in the United States. Efforts are now on foot to have the two meet in one of the distance events in which Stenroos has promised to participate while in this country.

Beats "Pi" Man

Mellor is a mechanic. His training for the events in which he has participated for years, is done in late afternoons, after a regular shift at his work. His victory may or may not be an argument against the inclusion of "pi" in training. In winning the Boston event Mellor had to outrun Clarence De Mar, Boston typesetter and four times winner of the run. De Mar finished second.

Frank Zuna, who finished third, is a plumber. Which may or may not prove that marathon running isn't a lead pipe cinch, even for plumbers.

Seriously, though, athletic experts are wondering what chance Mellor would have against Stenroos. Mellor's time in the Boston event was 2 hours and 33 minutes and three-fifths of a second. This time was more than two minutes slower than the record for the event. Stenroos' time in the Olympic run was 2:41;22 6-10. Stenroos ran his race under a sun that forced other contenders to drop along the roadside. His endurance, under the burning heat, was unbelieveable. Mellor ran under more favorable conditions, generally, although a stiff wind bothered him some. So the difference in time probably does not give a fair indication as to the relative speed of the men. On one thing, however, critics are agreed, that is that Mellor did not face the stiff pace that Stenroos sets from the start. The forty-year-old Finn sets out on his long runs at a gait that the average middle distance runner sets—a pace calculated to burn up the average man's strength and stamina in a couple of miles.

Superb Form

That Mellor was in superb form when he ran his race is indicated by the fact that he cut some four minutes off his time of last year, when he was forced to take De Mar's dust. The latter finished third in the Olympic games last year in Paris.

Mellor's victory came at the end of his fourth effort in a span of eight years. He entered the event the first time in 1917 and finished fifth in the big field. Four years later he tried again and finished second to Frankie Zuna. Last year he was forced to be content again with second place.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Inside details of the financial angles of a boxer's life were given today by Mike McTigue in denying the latest story now going the rounds that he had got rid of Paddy Mullins as manager by hoodwinking that fine old Irishman with the story that he was going to Ireland to live.

"I never said that to Mullins," declared Michael. "I signed my contract with him of my own free will and paid Joe Jacobs $10,000 to release me from my contract with him.

"In my fight with Johnny King in Atlanta my contract called for 47½ per cent of the receipts. After the expenses and the manager's cut — one-third — were taken out, my end was about $147.

"Last summer I was ordered to Saratoga Springs to get ready for a bout either with Tunney or Carpentier. I arranged for sparring partners and a chef at a cost of $1000 a week.

"After eight weeks I was told that something had come up to prevent a match with either man, and I came home an $8,000 loser.

"Then came the fight with Mickey Walker. I signed my own contract and was guaranteed $25,000 for my end. Just before I entered the ring Mullins told me I would have to lop off $5,000 as the house was below expectations.

"I hurt my already injured hand in the Walker fight, and this cost me more money. After the fight I told Mullins to collect the sum guaranteed me, and he returned with $10,000, out of which he took his third share.

"Then I demanded my release and got it. Ireland was never mentioned. The understanding between Paddy and me was that I could be released from him whenever I asked him."

NEW YORK, May 18.—Neither the Preakness ten days ago nor the Kentucky Derby on Saturday produced a colt that can hope to become the champion three-year-old of the 1925 season, according to the opinion expressed today by turfmen who saw both races and are still without a throb. Coventry, a maiden as far as the 1925 season went, won the Preakness from a mediocre field and then broke down; Flying Ebony, winner of the Derby, is just a good horse, no more, no less. As a mateer of fact, it was the common impression that the Derby field was the most ordinary of recent years.

"Just a bunch of nickel horses," was the succinct comment of one native of Kentucky.

The most noteworthy thing about the two classics, in fact, was that both winners were owned by Gifford A. Cochran, giving that stable two purses mounting well above $100,000.

The trouble, however, is not with the three-year-olds as a whole. Quatrain proved to be an over-rated favorite for the Derby, but the fact of the matter is that he would not have rated as the favorite at all if Master Charlie and Stimulus had not broken down and Sunny Man, another plausible colt, been poisoned.

It would have been quite the typical Derby field with this trio at the post. Master Charlie, generally recognized as the 1924 champion two-year-old, previously had proved himself a fine stake horse, and needed only to remain sound to go to Churchill Downs as an almost prohibitive favorite, with Stimulus also very highly fancied.

Both probably will return to the track for the impending three-year-old stakes and unless Flying Ebony is a far better colt than he indicated on Saturday, the 1925 honors are likely to be decided between them.

There is no other three-year-old in sight that seems capable of contesting the issue, Kentucky Cardinal, Backbone, Chantey, Swope, Captain Hal and the rest of the present leaders having failed.

As for Flying Ebony, it was said he could have hardly won the Derby without Earl Sande in the saddle. The Cochran colt could have done 2:06, if necessary, at Churchill Downs. This is good time for a mile and a quarter, but it doesn't prove anything except that Sande's master handling transformed a good horse into a big stake winner.

XXVI—Water Drinking

Cultivate the water drinking habit after resuming your regular diet, but let it be cool water sipped gently, rather than very cold water drunk down in large quantities. Carefully avoid all ice cold drinks. Drinking ice cold drinks in hot weather will cause one to suffer from the heat more than hot drinks.

Cold drinks cool temporarily; they drive the blood away from the stomach in a chilled condition. Momentarily, the blood backs up and the heart sends it back again with greater force to warm the stomach. This heart action can only heat up the body.

Warm drinks do not call for this heart action unless they are stimulants such as coffee, tea or cocoa. All desert explorers know that warm water is more beneficial than cold water when it is necessary to drink on a hot day.

The Chinese keep cool by soaking themselves in a hot bath tub for about thirty minutes on a hot day, after which the hottest weather seems cool to them.

The eating of tropical fruits and vegetables in a warm climate will keep the body cool and comfortable, while meats degerminized, corn meal, white bread and other forms of starch are very heating, and cause much discomfort in hot weather.

Tomorrow—More Health Hints.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, May 18.—One month of the major league season has passed and in it the New York and Detroit clubs of the American league have handicapped themselves by their inability to win worse than either has been handicapped since the two teams became running factors in the pennant races of the junior organizations.

Neither of these clubs was out of first division on a week-end during the season of 1924. The Yanks, to be exact, never got below third place and Detroit never got below fourth. This season, Detroit has touched the bottom, and New York has been dangerously close to it.

There may be less surprsie in the Yankee slump than in that of Detroit, for the Yanks were beginning to show the wear and tear that is bound to affect a group of ball players sooner or later. Seemingly they were nearer the turn than their leader realized, for it is hardly conceivable that they are such a one man club they cannot get along without Ruth.

In the case of Detroit, it seems to be a little of everything with a deluge of bad breaks and poor luck. The pitching has faltered and it was a sore blow to the team not to start with Cobb, who was ill at the beginning of the season.

Both these clubs, which have meant so much in recent years to the American league, now must have straight runs of victories to equal their defeats if they are to get back in the running, for both have about twice as many defeats as victories so far.

That is a task to daunt any but the stoutest heart. It is far easier to start well and fall than it is to start out poorly and climb. The Boston Americans demonstrated that last season when they started off with a hurrah that gave Boston fans visions of a pennant and then went into a slump from which they could never recover.

New York and Detroit, to get back in the fight, must win consecutively for practically two weeks. Such a feat, which is practically impossible, would bring them up around the .500 mark and they would only be starting if the Athletics and Washingtons continued streaking along as they have been doing. Granting that they can come back, it will be impossible for them to do it before the first of June.

If it were certain that, while New York and Detroit were regaining what they have lost, Philadelphia and Washington would lose the lead they have acquired, the American league race would begin to show those elements that made it look like one of the closest fights in baseball history, prior to the opening of the season. But if the present leaders cannot be checked, and continue to mosey along as they are doing, it is not improbable that this will become the season of the greatest slump that the American league has known for years.

As things stand, in a race that is presumed to run for about six months, two of the supposedly strong factors are a month out of the reckoning. That throws an awful load on the shoulders of the players of those clubs for the days to come, and only by some process of resurrection can New York and Detroit get back to their normal speed.

Possibly there is a slump in store for Washington and Philadelphia but May 15 is one black Friday this year for Detroit and New York.

The next congress will be held in San Diego.

CUP RACE TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The race for the San Francisco perpetual challenge cup between the defending yacht Rascal and the challenging craft Debra of Los Angeles was to be run in San Francisco bay this afternoon following postponement of the event yesterday on account of unfavorable conditions. Thirteen miles of the fifteen-mile had been covered when it was agreed to call the event off, owing to the lack of a breeze. The craft drifted the thirteen miles in about four hours.

CARRIERS BATTLE ELEVEN INNINGS

Long Beach And Glendale In Tie, 5 to 5, As Game Called By Umps

Glendale and Long Beach letter carriers provided a real thriller in the way of a baseball game yesterday at Long Beach, when the two teams battled eleven innings to a 5-to-5 tie. The local team was accompanied by 120 rooters from Glendale to the beach city.

Richards was on the mound for the Glendale aggregation, and held the beach mailmen to four hits. Whitney did the receiving. Bristol hurled for Long Beach and was almost as stingy with hits as Richards was, Glendale carriers gathering five. Rogers caught for Long Beach. Two errors were made by Glendale and five were chalked up against Long Beach.

Long Beach scored two runs in the first inning. Glendale put over three in the third, and added two in the fifth. Long Beach knotted the count in the sixth with three runs, and from then on only goose eggs adorned the score board. Nye saved the day for Glendale when he made a shoestring catch in the eleventh with three on.

Master Barbers Take Chirotonsors As Name

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, May 18.—Entre la femme! And cigarette stubs are replaced by flower pots, and the bare spots touched up by gaudy cretonne.

The latest effect woman has had upon man's domain is that which caused the Master Barbers association of Zanesville to discard the old name of "barber" and replace it with "chirotonsor."

The national association adopted this new appellation, and the Zanesville barb—(beg pardon)—chirotonsors, straightaway applied it to themselves.

"Only 'The Barber of Seville' will keep his name intact."

BIRTHDAY GIFTS AT MILLEA STORE

Patrons To Get 20 Per Cent Discount During Sixth Anniversary Event

The sixth birthday celebration Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Millea's store, 119 North Brand boulevard, is going to prove a most happy occasion for both proprietor and patrons.

To mark the birthday Mr. Millea decided to give away presents instead of receiving them. His presents include a discount of 20 per cent, one-fifth, on every article in the store. That means hundreds and hundreds of dollars in saving to all friends and patrons who make purchases during the celebration, which is to last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Big Variety in Stock

Included in the big stock of goods are hosiery, knit underwear, bathing suits, women's aprons, infants' wear, leather goods, silk and muslin underwear, women's and children's dresses, handkerchiefs, brassieres and many other articles.

When Glendale was but a small city, this ready-to-wear shop was opened. Business success has marked the growth of this shopping center. Today the store is recognized as a place of dependable merchandise at remarkable values. This success Mr. Millea considers justification for the birthday celebration he is to hold.

Mourning for "Billy"

Black garbed she is—mourning for Billy and for her many woes. Her long coat is trimmed with wide monkey fur, the hat is black and the gloves silk and the purse pinzal. The shoes are severe and the hose are heavy sheened. One touch of white relieves the austerity of her costume—the scarf of black is white figured. It brings in relief the tear-washed eyes and the mouth, quirking with love at her husband.

"Of Isabelle?" she raises her eyes in query for a moment, tears them away from the man who holds her heart so wholly. "I have nothing to say—merely that I am disillusioned. Surely she might have spared Billy the discussion of his intimate affairs. But I have no criticism—she has my pity too, completely."

Japan Volcano Sends Forth Shower of Ashes

TOKIO, May 18.—Yakegatake volcano, in the Japanese Alps, 150 miles west of Tokio, erupted violently this morning scattering ashes for miles around the surrounding countryside. The ash fall continued two hours and forced citizens in Mayebassi, fifty miles distant from the volcano, to remain indoors. Over other distant points the ash shower resembled a heavy fog.

Local Delegates At Exchange Clubs Meet

of Toledo, Ohio, national secretary. Mr. Oneal's majority was 41 to 14.

Principal Address

The convention opened Friday with an address by President Oneal. Mayor C. M. Andrea of Santa Barbara gave an address of welcome, and George Emery, president of the Santa Barbara club, spoke. President Oneal spoke later in the session, when he outlined the kind of co-operation given by the national organization.

His attack upon the organizer sent to this state drew a stinging reply from National Secretary Harter, and also a statement from National President George C. Sabichi, in his address Saturday afternoon.

Friday noon the Glendalians attended a luncheon held at the Arlington hotel and heard Chief of Police Daniel J. O'Brien of San Francisco speak. Following the luncheon, the convention visitors were taken for a sight-seeing trip around the city, yachting parties, fishing trips and other forms of entertainment were provided. Friday night they attended a barbecue given by the Santa Barbara club at Tucker's Grove, where the entertainment consisted of Spanish dancing and music.

The main business of the sessions of the convention were held Saturday morning and afternoon, when the election of officers took place. It was planned to have the election over by noon, but a fight on state or national control of California clubs rocked the convention, and delayed the election.

It was at the luncheon Saturday noon, given at the Carrillo hotel, that the Glendale Exchangeites made their big hit. The four "baby" members of the local organization presented a skit that scored heavily. The quartet of actors were Dr. F. W. Loring, Dr. A. G. Bower, Earl Welch and H. W. Brough. Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson led the Glendale delegation in singing the "Unity" songs, the words of which were written by Postmaster Jackson. During the luncheon, Dr. Bower suggested a new state slogan—"Exchange, the spokes in the wheel of service."

Saturday afternoon, after the business session had been concluded, the convention visitors were royally entertained by the Santa Barbara club members. Saturday night a grand ball was held at the Arlington hotel, and Sunday the delegates and their wives were taken on sight-seeing trips to Ojai, yachting in the Santa Barbara channel, and special services at the Santa Barbara mission, Sunday morning. The homeward trek was started late Sunday afternoon.

The headquarters of the Glendale delegation while attending the convention was at the Carrillo hotel. Those who attended the convention from Glendale were:

President William Baker and Mrs. Baker; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Vanderwood, Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Loring, Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Bower, T. J. Fambrough, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Welch and son, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kaufman and two sons, Mr. and Mrs. W. Claire Anspach, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Christy, Dr. Henry R. Harrower, Secretary T. F. Culhane, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Daniel, D. Ripley Jackson, Mrs. Harvey Bates, Mrs. O. F. Paseman and H. W. Brough.

GLENDALE SLEUTH IS SECRETLY WED

Sergeant F.C.Williams Takes Bride While Testifying In Riverside Case

Subpoenaed as the principal witness for the state in a diamond robbery trial at Riverside last Thursday, Detective Sergeant F. C. Williams returned on Saturday with a bride, his associates on the force learned today. Because they were not let in on the secret, they have threatened him and Mrs. Williams with the handcuffs at the first opportunity.

Mrs. Williams was formerly Mrs. Margaret Thime of Minneapolis. A registered nurse, she came to Glendale last fall with a patient and stopped to visit for the winter with a friend, Mrs. R. E. Roudabush, 720 East Broadway.

Mrs. Roudabush, clerk of the police court, introduced the pair. Cupid took care of the rest.

Williams' "Alibi

Williams, in an alibi delivered to the force this afternoon, said he had planned to be married here by Judge F. H. Lowe. But Thursday was his day off, and he went to Riverside to appear at the robbery trial, most of the details of which he had uncovered in an investigation two years ago for an insurance company.

He was not called to the stand and was subpoenaed for the following day. Returning to Glendale to notify Chief of Police John D. Fraser, he invited his fiancee to visit Riverside with him. There, they thought to avoid publicity by obtaining a license, then to be wedded here by Judge Lowe after June 1. But the local sleuth was told by the license clerk that his document was no good outside Riverside county. So they used it immediately.

After an admission had been gained by Captain of Detectives Loving and Detective Lieutenant W. J. Royle, Williams bought the cigars.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service

NEW YORK, May 18.—In an inactive, but narrow, market, prices of leading industrial and motor stocks reached higher levels today, the former under the leadership of American Can and the latter by Mack Trucks. Nash Motors reached a record high of 391.

The advance in industrial stocks brought the average price of industrial stocks to the highest of the year.

Mack Trucks renewed the forward movement which has been in progress, with slight intercessions, for more than a year. Stocks of the motor accessories companies commanded better prices, United States Rubber also benefiting by sensational advance in prices of crude rubber, which today reached 70 cents a pound for smoked sheets.

Super-power was the magic word which drove prices of curb and listed utility stocks to higher prices today. American Water Works was the leader in listed utility shares, advancing 3 points, to a new high at 62¼, in recognition of its position as the pioneer in linking up a number of the most influential power companies into an effective unit. Montana Power and Philadelphia Co. sold higher.

A strong grain market, with wheat advancing 3 to 5 cents was an important factor in the rise of stock prices. Call money ruled at 3¾ per cent.

Oil stocks spurted in the last hour on rumors that eastern crude oil prices will be revised upward, soon. Standard of New Jersey gained a point, at 44¼ and prominent independent oils, like Royal Dutch, Marland, Independent Oil & Gas and Pan-American, sold up a point or more.

BOULEVARD PLAN GETS UNDER WAY

Finest Road In City To Be Made On Glenoaks, Is Glendale Plan

With the announcement today of an adjustment of all engineering difficulties for the construction of one of the finest boulevards in the city over Glenoaks boulevard from Grand View avenue to the Burbank city limits, a distance of one and one-quarter miles, plans were got under way for official action by the City Council to start the proposed improvement.

City Engineer J. E. Johannsen and other city officials have been co-operating with the Northwest Improvement association and the Pacific Electric for several weeks in an effort to have the boulevard made one of the most high-class streets in Glendale.

When completed the boulevard will be a street forty feet wide with ten-foot park spaces on each side of the Pacific Electric tracks, with a sixty-foot right-of-way for the railroad. It will serve the entire northwestern part of the city directly, but it will also make one of the finest through thoroughfares into the city from the northwest.

The estimated cost of the proposed improvement will not be known until the council has determined upon the type of paving to be constructed. Petition for the improvement of the boulevard will probably be presented to the council within the next few weeks.

Thousands See Aerial Meet Dedicating Field

the day. In the dead stick landing contest, flyers from Burdette field, Los Angeles, bettered records made at Glendale and Sacramento when they captured first and second places in the event at distances of five feet six inches and six feet two inches. The winning flyers were Jack Frye and J. S. MacDougall.

Alfred Gilhousen and H. G. Myers, local flyers, represented Glendale in the air. The Bell meet featured California jubilee year with Spanish decorations used extensively. Participants and officials wore Spanish costumes, a thirty-five piece Spanish band played during the afternoon. The meet was staged under the auspices of the Bell Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis club of that city.

City Owns Field

The new Bell field, 1500 feet in length and located in the center of the community, is owned by the city. City officials took part in the dedication of the field yesterday.

More than a score of ships were on the field throughout the afternoon, thrilling the thousands of spectators with daring stunts and practical demonstrations of the utility of the airship. Officials were particularly pleased with the showing made by Burdette field flyers in the dead stick landing contest. The record of Frye, who won first place in the finals, coming within five feet six inches of the mark, is the best ever made. The record was formerly held by Earle Daugherty of Long Beach who won laurels at the Glendale avaiation meet.

In the relay air race, Frye of Burdette field was also the winner. Flyers of the Bell airport gave a thrilling exhibition of formation flying during the meet. The events were interspersed with stunt flying, wing and ladder walking and other features.

City Council Will Open No. 6 Fire Station Bids

Bids are expected to be opened on Thursday by the City Council for the construction of fire station No. 6 to be erected at Chevy Chase drive near Verdugo Canyon road at an estimated cost of $5000. Bids have not yet been asked on the building of fire station No. 5, to be constructed in the vicinity of Glorietta avenue and Verdugo Canyon road.

City Attorney Ray L. Morrow, however, has been asked for an opinion as to whether or not the public service department of the city can sell to the public safety department a lot that is believed suitable. If the transfer can legally be made bids will be asked immediately on the second station.

Two fire engines costing about $12,000 will be delivered about July 1 to install in the new stations. The buildings will be of stucco and will be the bungalow type.

not undertake to liquidate her American debt without promising to make equal and simultaneous payment to Great Britain.

Bonds Are Requested

While aware of the situation, the American debt commission has not the authority nor disposition to take it into consideration in negotiating debt agreements. The United States simply wants the nations which now owe it more than $7,000,000,000, represented by demand notes, to change their obligations into bonds and to agree upon definite dates for payment as did Great Britain.

None of these funding agreements, it was said, may be made contingent upon any transaction, financial or otherwise, with which both the United States and the particular debt nation is not concerned.
